"Character is destiny." - Heraclitus

The music of Carmen has infiltrated modern popular culture thanks to its inclusion in numerous commercials (most recently Subway), films (Carmen Jones), and television shows (even a notable episode of Gilligan's Island). The appeal of Georges Bizet's tuneful melodies seems universal. The basic story of Carmen is familiar to many: girl meets boy, boy and girl fall in love, boy loses girl, boy kills girl. But in reality, the story is much more complicated than love gone wrong. The juxtaposition of fate versus free will permeates the opera. Although their relationship seems to bring out the worst in both of them, Don José chooses to love the gypsy Carmen. He rejects his mother's advice to marry the good girl Micaela and loves Carmen, asking, "Why was it that destiny put her there, on my path?" Even as their love crumbles and she falls for Escamillo, Carmen does not fight against what she believes is her fated path. Don José tries to overpower her, saying, "I will force you to submit to the destiny that links your fate to mine." Despite her strong will and all her talk of liberty, Carmen takes no action to avoid her own demise because she believes the cards of fortune don't lie ("destiny is the master"). To tarot, the death card does not actually imply death, instead a transformation or new beginning. But Carmen takes her fate literally, and so it is written. Today, I predict you are fate to enjoy the very talented singers of UNLV Opera Theater as we begin a new era of collaboration celebrating the magical mixture of music and theater that is opera. And Carmen, with its passion and pageantry, is grand opera at its grandest.

ACT II. Lillas Pastia's Tavern [35 minutes]

Carmen and her friends Frasquita and Mercedes entertain Zuniga and other officers. Zuniga tells Carmen that José has been released this very day. A procession in honor of the bullfighter Escamillo is heard, and the officers invite him in. He describes the excitement of his profession, in particular the amorous rewards that follow a successful bullfight. Escamillo then proposes to Carmen, but she replies that she is engaged for the moment. He says he will wait. Carmen refuses to leave with Zuniga, who threatens to return later. When the company has departed, the smugglers Dancairo and Remendado enter. They have business in hand for which their regular female accomplices are essential. Frasquita and Mercedes are game, but Carmen refuses to leave Seville: she is in love. Her friends are incredulous. José's song is heard in the distance. The smugglers withdraw. Carmen tells José that she has been dancing for his officers. When he reacts jealously, she agrees to entertain him. Bugles are heard sounding the retreat. José says that he must return to barracks. Stupefied, Carmen mocks him, but he answers by producing the flower she threw and telling her how its faded scent sustained his love during the long weeks in. But she replies that he doesn't love her; if he did he would desert and join her in a life of freedom in the mountains. Tom with doubts, he finally refuses, and she dismisses him contemptuously. As he leaves, Zuniga bursts in. In a jealous rage, José attacks him. The smugglers return, separate them, and put Zuniga under temporary constraint. José now has no choice but to desert and join the smugglers.

ACT III. In the Spanish mountains [30 minutes]

The gang enters with contraband and pauses for a brief rest while Dancairo and Remendado go on a reconnaissance mission. Carmen and José quarrel, and José is gazing regretfully down to the valley where his mother is living. Carmen advises him to join her. The women turn the cards to tell their fortunes: Frasquita and Mercedes foresee rich and gallant lovers, but Carmen's cards spell death, for her and for José. She accepts the prophecy. Micaela appears, saying that she fears nothing so much as meeting the woman who has turned the man she once loved into a criminal. But she湍tes away in fear when a shot rings out. It is José firing at an intruder, who turns out to be Escamillo, transporting bulls to Seville. When he refers to the soldier whom Carmen once loved, José reveals himself and they fight. Carmen and the smugglers return and separate Francisco. Escamillo invites everyone, especially Carmen, to be his guests at the next bullfight in Seville. Micaela is discovered, and she begs José to go with her to his mother but he furiously refuses. Micaela then reveals that his mother is dying. José promises Carmen that they will meet again. As José and Micaela leave, Escamillo is heard singing in the distance.

ACT IV. A square in Seville [20 minutes]

As the excited crowd cheers on the bullfighters, Carmen enters on Escamillo's arm. Frasquita and Mercedes warn Carmen that José has been seen in the crowd. She says that she is not afraid. José enters. He implores her to forget the past and start a new life with him. She tells him calmly that everything between them is over. She will never give in; she was born free and free she will die. While the crowd is heard cheering Escamillo, José tries to prevent Carmen from joining her new lover. Carmen finally loses her temper, takes from her finger the ring that José once gave her, and throws it at his feet. José stabs her, and then confesses to the murder of the woman he loved.
