Robert W. Smith's On The Rising Winds was inspired by an experience during a flight over the beautiful state of Georgia. Flying on a smaller plane on the clearest of Sunday mornings, the ascent was very gradual, slowly revealing the natural beauty of the state. Beginning with the softest of winds, the mysterious introduction gives way to the most exuberant of flights, culminating in an exciting final statement. The title also suggests and celebrates the ever-increasing skills of wind band musicians at this level. Daehn Publications, the University of Georgia Band commissioned this piece for the 1997 Mid-Fest Honor Band. Belwin-Mills Music Publishing Corp., 1998.

Growing up in farm country of Rosendale WI, Larry Daehn began his music career. Locally educated, Mr. Daehn earned his Bachelors of Music Education at UW-Oshkosh and then Masters at UW-Platteville. He has been teaching for the past several years in New Glarus, WI. In addition to teaching he composes many pieces that are endearing as well as entertaining and is the owner of Daehn Publications. A Song for Friends was composed in 1997 and is a great choice for the band repertoire. The comfortable instrumental range allows players to be expressive while producing good tone. The melodic lines are easy to identify and create phrase shape. The simplistic melody really embodies the true and simplistic joys of friendship. Daehn Publications, 1997.

Johnnie Vinson's Grand Gallop is a concert march in this traditional circus march style. The circus march, also called "circus gallop" and sometimes "screamer," is an American musical genre. Quoting Wikipedia, circus marches "...were mostly composed in a 60-year period (1895-1955). Circuses were in need of music that would stir the audience into a frenzy, as four-footed animals galloped across the ring. Because march music was a prominent part of American music at that time, and because it carried such a quick tempo, it was this that ringleaders demanded." Prominent composers of circus marches included Henry Fillmore (1881-1956) and Karl L. King (1891-1971). Hal Leonard Corporation, 2012.

Charles L. Booker Jr.'s Civil War Saga (Prairie Grove 1862) was composed in the spring of 2008 for the Prairie Grove High School Band in commemoration of the 100-year anniversary of the Prairie Grove Battlefield National Park. The piece I a musical representation of the Battle of Prairie Grove fought December 7, 1862 in Northwest Arkansas. Even though the battle resulted in a tactical stalemate, it essentially secured northwest Arkansas for the Union. The clarinet presents the main theme, gravely foretelling the soldier's fate. A short interlude follows and the troops begin steadily marching toward the base. Civil War Saga was premiered by the Prairie Grove High School band on January 9, 2009, Gerry Nichols, conductor.

Charles L., Booker, Jr. is Associate Professor of Music at the University of Arkansas, Fort Smith where he has served as Director of Bands, Director of Jazz Studies, and Chair of the Music Department. He currently teaches conducting, orchestration, theory and composition. Mr. Booker is an internationally known composer, and a former U.S. Army Bandmaster, receiving his degrees from the University of the State of New York and the University of Texas at San Antonio. Booker Music Publication, 2008.

Fanfare, Chorale and Fugue was written by Caesar Giovannini, a composer and pianist who was educated at the Chicago Conservatory (Bachelor/Master of Music degrees) and a pianist in the United States Navy Band in Washington DC. He joined NBC in Chicago as a staff pianist (1949-1956), and ABC in Chicago in 1958. In 1960, he moved to Los Angeles, where he became active as pianist, composer and arranger for various Motion Picture and Television studios in Hollywood, California. Arizona has been his home since 1983, where he continues his career as a composer of band and ensemble music. His instrumental compositions include "El Toro" and "Brazilian Polka". www.imdb.com/name/nm0320520/bio (accessed February 13, 2013).

Timothy Mahr is Professor of Music and Director of Bands at the University of Minnesota Duluth. He conducts the Symphonic Wind Ensemble, Concert Band, and Marching Band; teaches applied low brass and instrumental methods; and supervises instrumental student teaching. A native of Wisconsin, Mr. Mahr earned his Bachelor's degree from St. Olaf College and a Master of Music degree in trombone performance from the University of Iowa. Fantasia in G is a joyful celebration for winds and percussion. The piece was inspired by the opening line of Johann Schiller's poem, Ode to Joy: "Freude, Schoener Goetterfunken" (Joy, Bright Spark of Divinity). The same text was used by Ludwig van Beethoven in his famed Symphony No. 9. Fantasia in G was written for the St. Olaf College Band and was first performed by that ensemble in January 1983. Notes by the composer.

Lincolnshire Posy by Percy Grainger for concert band was composed in 1937 for the American Bandmasters Association. Considered Grainger's masterpiece, the 16-minute-long work is composed of six movements, each adapted from folk songs that Grainger had collected on a 1905–1906 trip to Lincolnshire, England. The work debuted with three of the movements on March 7, 1937 by the Milwaukee Symphonic Band, a group composed of members from several bands including the Blatz Brewery and Pabst Blue Ribbon beer factory worker bands in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Unlike other composers that attempted to alter and modernize folk music for band, such as Ralph Vaughan Williams, Grainger wished to maintain the exact sense of stylizing that he experienced from the singers. Grainger wrote: "Each number is intended to be a kind of musical portrait of the singer who sang its underlying melody... a musical portrait of the singer's personality no less than of his habits of song, his regular or irregular wots of rhythm, his preference for gaunt or ornately arabesque delivery, his contrasts of legato and staccato, his tendency towards breadth or delicacy of tone." Grainger dedicated his "bunch of Wildflowers" to "the old folksingetra who sang so sweetly to me." http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Lincolnshire_Posy (accessed February 7, 2013).
Charles Ives composed his Variations on ‘America’ when he was 17 and working as church organist in his hometown. Originally composed for organ, the work was later popularized in a 1949 arrangement for orchestra by William Schuman; William E. Rhoads provided the wind band transcription in 1964. This composition of five variations represents the earliest known example of musical polytonality. They are humorous in character and full of surprises. He used his musical unorthodoxy to assert his independence from the genteel musical life of 19th century New England, while demonstrating his ability to be a “cut up” to his male peers. He was also asserting his devout patriotism. http://www.windband.org/foothill/pgm_note/notes_ij.htm (accessed February 13, 2013).

Sergei Prokofieff successfully composed in many musical forms. His Athletic Festival March captured the spirit of the band medium as few composers have done before. In the March, Op. 99, one of his latest opus numbers, he has, if anything, written even more felicitous band music. It once again proves the value of the original work for band as against the often-hackneyed transcription or arrangement. This “March” is not apparently meant for the marching band although one feels the overtones of the quickstep style and it surely is not in the Grand March tradition. It must be played in a lively tempo with a very light spirit. There was no metronome indication in Prokofieff’s original score and the present one is provided from the premiere performance in this Hemisphere, which was given by Dr. Serge Koussevitzky conducting the Combat Infantry Band on May 31, 1945. MCA Music Publishing, 1946.

UNLV New Horizons Band

The NEW HORIZONS music program originated at the Eastman School of Music (Rochester, N.Y.) in 1991 by then Chair of the Department of Music Education, Dr. Roy Ernst. Today, there are over 120 New Horizons bands, orchestras, and choral groups across the United States, Canada, and Australia. Ernst notes that, “Older adults have the time and motivation to develop musical skills rapidly. In addition, performing music - especially in large groups - can improve health and quality of life.” He adds, “many gerontologists believe that music making supports good mental and physical health as one grows older. Studies actually indicate that participants take less medication, have reductions in depression and loneliness, and have increased strength of the immune system.”

The UNLV New Horizons Band was started in January 2006 and is under the aegis of the University Bands area within the Department of Music at UNLV. This ensemble is offered as a non-credit course through the UNLV Department of Educational Outreach. In accordance with the New Horizons philosophy, this musical ensemble places an emphasis on the learning and enjoyment of music rather than the rigor and pressures of performance. Although musical comprehension and appreciation are of the highest priorities, the UNLV New Horizons Band also performs regularly throughout the academic semester both on and off the UNLV campus.

UNLV Symphonic Winds

The UNLV SYMPHONIC WINDS is open to music and non-music majors who successfully audition into the ensemble. Students in this ensemble primarily perform standard wind band literature with an emphasis upon practical pedagogical foundations. The Symphonic Winds is directed by Prof. Anthony LaBounty. Graduate assistants from the masters and doctoral conducting degree programs also regularly conduct the group.

In addition to regularly scheduled concerts each semester, the Symphonic Winds performs for UNLV Commencement ceremonies and has also served as a special exhibition ensemble premiering the wind band transcription of Sonata for Alto Saxophone by Robert Muczynski at the North American Saxophone Alliance Conference (2011). The group has also performed with special guest soloists John McMurtery (flute), Gary Cook (percussion) and Timothy Jones (percussion). The Symphonic Winds have also recorded numerous catalogued wind band repertoire holdings of TRN Music Publisher, Inc. The Symphonic Winds serves as an excellent laboratory ensemble for undergraduate and graduate composition students by rehearsing and recording student compositions each semester.
