Jerry Tarkanian was named Coach-of-the-Year by Basketball Times and the PCAA for 1984-85. He had been UP's choice in 1983-84. UNLV is not the only school that Tarkanian has had coaching success at. At State College of Long Beach from 1966-68, he compiled a 122-20 record (859) in five seasons and reached the NCAA's four times. He never lost a home game in those five seasons, including a string of 65 straight home wins.

Jerry Tarkanian's home has been the basketball court. Each year as he presides as the head coach, he preaches virtues such as hard work, discipline and loyalty. With his 6-7 frame and closely knit families - the UNLV Runnin' Rebels - the team was 29-6 - the third time Tarkanian has guided UNLV to its second consecutive NCAA Regional Final.

Jerry Tarkanian was honored by the Las Vegas Kidney Foundation as Man-of-the-Year for his efforts on behalf of that organization. He also runs community related functions and charities. Last year, Tarkanian was named Coach-of-the-Year by the Las Vegas Kidney Foundation.

A MESSAGE FROM UNLV PRESIDENT DR. ROBERT C. MAXSON

Dear friends of UNLV:

I am happy to have this opportunity to express my greetings to you and to convey my best wishes to Coach Tarkanian and the Rebels basketball team for another successful basketball season. This university has built a national reputation for excellence in its athletic programs. UNLV's athletic excellence and stature of achievement in the University have greatly enhanced the visibility and pride in the hearts of many throughout the city and region.

We are aware, however, that this excellent basketball program is a part of a larger success story, the remarkable growth and development of the University of Nevada, Las Vegas as an important urban university. UNLV is fortunate to be a vital part of a wonderful metropolitan community. Though we in southern Nevada can be proud to call our home, we are committed to the further development of UNLV as a first-rate research institution which will serve the residents of southern Nevada, our state and nation as a center of excellence for teaching, learning, and research. The residents of this community who have supported the institution so generously over the years deserve nothing less.

This is truly one of the most exciting times in the history of our University. We are at a turning point from which we must push ahead toward greater excellence as an institution of higher learning. I invite all of you to join us as we endeavor to build an even stronger foundation of academic excellence for UNLV. I have no doubt that with all your support and the efforts of our fine faculty and staff, the University of Nevada will continue to be a University of the first class.

Sincerely,

Robert C. Maxson
President

UNLV WELCOMES A NEW PRESIDENT!

DR. ROBERT C. MAXSON

Dr. Robert C. Maxson assumed the Presidency of the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, August 1, 1984. He was previously Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs of the University of Houston.

Dr. Maxson received his doctorate from Mississippi State University in 1970. His major areas of academic interest and study have been educational administration and social psychology. Dr. Maxson and his wife, Sylvia, have two children, Tod (20) and Kim (16).
UNLV DIRECTOR OF INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS
Dr. Brad Rothermel

For the 1983-84 academic year, the University of Nevada, Las Vegas has had each of its fourteen intercollegiate sports, with only two exceptions, represented in post-season, national competition. In addition, exactly half of those sports were ranked nationally in the top 20 at one time or another. Much of the credit for this outstanding intercollegiate record goes to UNLV's Director of Intercollegiate Athletics, Dr. Brad Rothermel.

Rothermel, now entering his fifth year as UNLV's Athletic Director, has built UNLV athletics to the point where the university is now very competitive at both the conference and national levels.

Rothermel's philosophy while at UNLV has been that the function of the intercollegiate athletic program is to provide for student-athletes an environment in which those student-athletes are able to pursue excellence in selected extracurricular educationally related athletic activities. Furthermore, his objective for the programs is to win within the structure of the rules and the budgetary framework provided. The achievement of this goal is demonstrated by successfully competing against national championship caliber competition in all activities sponsored by the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Prior to his appointment at UNLV in 1981, he was Associate Director and Business Manager for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics at West Virginia University. From 1974 to 1976 he was employed as Assistant Director and Business Manager for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics at Kansas State University. Rothermel supervised the intercollegiate athletic programs for men and women while serving as Director of the Division of Health and Physical Education at George Williams College in Downers Grove, Illinois, from 1971 to 1974.

From 1965 to 1967, he served as Supervisor of Counseling and Research Development while functioning in the capacity of Assistant Athletic Director of the University of Illinois Athletic Association. Prior to that position he was an administrative associate and coach for the Chicago National League Baseball Club, Inc. (Chicago Cubs).

In addition to his above mentioned athletic positions, Rothermel has served as an administrator in numerous educational, recreational, and financial environments. He also possesses coaching and experience as a competitor at all levels from elementary school through the professional ranks.

Rothermel received his Ph.D. in 1965 and a M.S. degree in 1961 from the College of Applied Human Life Sciences at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana. He received his B.S. from Northern Illinois University in 1960.

Rothermel and his wife, Suzanne, a kindergarten teacher in the Clark County District, have two daughters; Beth, 15, and Christine, 11.

For all of us here in Nevada, living the life we want often means something a little different. But it always means something special. Most of all, it means working together.

And no matter the life you choose to live, First Interstate Bank of Nevada is committed to helping you live it.

Maybe it's making a move for the better with the help of a home improvement loan. Or planning for retirement with one of our IRAs. For some, it's a new car or recreational vehicle. Or a college education with a government-backed student loan offered only through First Interstate Bank of Nevada. Perhaps it's financial strength for that growing business. Or a consumer banking package that fits your individual needs.

First Interstate Bank of Nevada and you. Working together to help you live the life you want. Just as we've been doing for the past eighty-two years.
Automobile dealers in Las Vegas are contributing a large measure of help to the UNLV Athletic Program with membership in the UNLV C.A.R.S. (Courtesy Auto Resource System) Ltd. program — the loan of courtesy cars. Like other programs which are a part of Rebel booster activities, this project enables the UNLV Athletic Department to make greater use of its funds. These sports-minded dealers have earned a debt of gratitude from the Rebel Athletic Department. They are an important part of the "Team" that helps make UNLV athletics so successful.

THE PACIFIC COAST ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The PCAA, now entering its 16th year, is developing into one of the strongest Division I conferences in the nation.

Since 1978, the PCAA has grown from an all California League to a league that has members from four states in the western part of the nation. The leagues' newest member, New Mexico State, will participate in conference football for the first time in the 1984 season.

In addition to New Mexico State, the other PCAA members are California State University, Fullerton; California State University, Long Beach; Fresno State University; San Jose State University; University of California, Irvine; University of California, Santa Barbara; University of Nevada, Las Vegas; University of the Pacific and Utah State University.

Lewis A. Cryer, who begins his seventh year as Commissioner of the PCAA, has overseen the conferences' phenomenal growth during his tenure. Under his guidance, the PCAA has grown in stature to rival some of the more established conferences in the nation. The PCAA has also recently added championships for women's basketball, swimming and track and field and is currently working to expand the PCAA women's league.

Working in the PCAA office with Cryer are: Assistant Commissioner Dennis Farrell; Supervisor of Football Officials Jack O'Cain; Supervisor of Basketball Officials John Dangles; Assistant to the Commissioner Jody Harter; Administrative Assistant Dodie Hayes and Secretary Michele Schrimpf-Scott.

The conference office is located at 1700 East Dyer Road, Suite 140, Santa Ana, California and the phone number is (714) 261-2525.

REBEL TRADITION

Without certain traditions, a Runnin' Rebel game just wouldn't be the same. Last season a new tradition was added, which has become a favorite part of the pre-game hoopla. Thanks to Mr. George Gerringer, the Runnin' Rebels enter the Thomas and Mack Center on their own red carpet, as we ROLL OUT THE RED CARPET FOR YOUR RUNNIN' REBELS. Mr. Gerringer crafted and donated the red carpet for the Rebels.

Another time-honored tradition is the pre-game light show, which is a carry-over from the days the Rebels played in the Convention Center, where the original pre-game lighting show was designed by Art Rader.

RUNNIN’ REBEL BASKETBALL: BEST IN THE WEST

Rarely when a team loses four of its top nine players to graduation is there much cause for optimism, but University of Nevada, Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian’s 1984-85 Runnin’ Rebels are an exception.

Once again, it appears that the Runnin’ Rebels will live up to their nickname as this will be one of the quickest UNLV teams that Tarkanian has coached. Moreover, the fact that this squad is filled with good shooters may make it comparable to Tarkanian’s 1976-77 Rebel which averaged 112 points per game and reached the Final Four.

Gone from the 1983-84 squad, which captured the PCAA regular season championship and advanced to the NCAA Western Regionals before losing to eventual national champion Georgetown University, are starting guards Danny Tarkanian (the school’s all-time steal and assist leader) and Jeff Collins, as well as part-time starters center Paul Brozovich and swingman Eric Booker. All four were drafted by NBA teams. Also gone from the 29-6 team is reserve guard Tom Roberts.

Despite the losses, Tarkanian, the 1983-84 Basketball Times and PCAA Coach-of-the-Year, feels confident about his team’s ability to match last year’s success.

“We do return five players who contributed a great deal to our team last year,” Tarkanian noted. “In addition to those, we have some fine redshirts who we hope can step in and offset the loss of the seniors.”

Heading the impressive list of returnees is All-America candidate Richie Adams (SR, 6-9, 225), the PCAA Player-of-the-Year and Tournament MVP last season. According to Tarkanian, Adams, who led UNLV in both scoring and rebounding last year, will be a major factor in the squad’s success in the 1984-85 season.

“Richie has a tremendous amount of ability. With him, it’s just a matter of how good he wants to be. But, we’ll just have to wait and see how he responds,” Tarkanian said.

Also returning for the Rebels this season are forwards Ed Catchings (SR, 6-10, 225) and Frank Collins (SR, 6-6, 187), who showed promise as a freshman last year.

The Rebels will also have the services of five outstanding redshirts from last season: Anthony Jones (JR, 6-6, 195), a transfer from Georgetown; Eldridge Hudson (SO, 6-4, 212), who sat out last year recovering from a knee injury; Richard Robinson (FR, 6-8, 208), who played in five games last season before contracting mononucleosis and being declared a medical redshirt; Gary Graham (SO, 6-4, 185), who played in 26 games as a freshman during the 1982-83 season; and Armon Gilliam (SO, 6-4, 230), a transfer from Independence Junior College in Kansas.

In addition, the Rebels signed two recruits to add depth to the squad in Lethyn Symanski, a 6-8 forward from Orange Coast Junior College, and Chris Fancher, a 6-0 guard from Crawford County High School in Marescop, Indiana.

Tarkanian feels that this combination of players could form an excellent team, but recognizes the possible problems.

“I think we have the potential to be a very good team. We have good depth, good size and good quickness. These factors should allow us to set the pace in most games and play more aggressively on defense than we have in the past. We’ll certainly have the opportunity to substitute more freely so that all of our players can stay fresh,” said Tarkanian.

Head Coach Jerry Tarkanian is known for billing on his towel when the game becomes close. But with nearly 600 career coaching victories, Tarkanian earns all the honors bestowed upon him. Most recently, he has been named the PCAA’s Coach-of-the-Year (1984) and Basketball Times’ Coach-of-the-Year (1984).

“I don’t think that we have any major weaknesses, but we do have some question marks. Eldridge (Hudson) will be recovering from his injury, and his status for the season is unknown. We also need to get some good leadership, but I’m not sure who will step up to provide that. We’re really counting on Richie (Banks) and Gary (Graham) to handle the point guard position for us. However, it’s very important that Freddie improve on his defense from last year,” Tarkanian said.

Another obstacle the Rebels will encounter is one of the strongest schedules in UNLV history. In addition to the always competitive PCAA schedule, the Rebels non-conference opponents include Georgetown, Maryland, San Diego State, Kansas State and Colorado State.

Understandably, Tarkanian is concerned.

“This is one of the toughest schedules we’ve ever faced. Practically all of the conference teams have improved since last year, and we have some super non-conference teams coming in here. In addition to those, we will be making a trip to Georgetown for a rematch with the defending NCAA champs.”

Lifting Weights The Rebel Basketball Way
By Dennis Wagner and Tim Wilson — UNLV Strength Coaches

Former Rebel Sidney Green demonstrates the hip sled.

The University of Nevada, Las Vegas basketball strength program consists basically of two programs, the off season and the pre-season programs. Each program is set up to utilize the student athletes time while getting a maximum effort in the weight room.

During the off season the objectives for the athlete are numerous. First and most obvious are the physical changes that are needed. Physical changes that should occur include, increases in strength, speed, agility, reaction time, cardiovascular endurance and flexibility. These changes give the athlete the confidence in his performance to be successful on the basketball court.

Here at UNLV the off season program consists of a 4 day a week high intensity work out. On Mondays and Thursdays the following upper body exercises are used; bench press, incline press, bench flies, shoulder press and shoulder raises. Tuesdays and Fridays are lower body days; hip sled, leg extension, leg flexion, and lunges. This routine is very demanding and therefore requires phases and cycles for the athlete to reach his lifting potential during the periodization. Without phases and cycles in a lifting program, the athlete will reach plateaus, become discouraged and in many cases avoid the weight room. Phases consist of reps, sets, and intensity. Cycles consist of days you wish to lift, and the number of weeks/phase in each cycle. The periodization is determined by the number of weeks in your program. The UNLV basketball program consists of 3 cycles (6 weeks) which completes the first periodization. The second periodization starts with cycle 1 and will run an additional 6 weeks. Thus making the total off season heavy program 12 weeks long. The intensity level for each exercise is measured by the amount of weight lifted in the set. The total poundage which equals the total poundage of each set then divided by the total repetitions to give an intensity.

The pre-season program is designed to utilize not only the short amount of time allotted for lifting, but to also increase muscular endurance which is important through the game. The player with superior muscular and cardiovascular endurance will have confidence in his abilities over the other players who will feel fatigued and weak in the late stages of the game. During pre-season lifting, the exercises used should be specific to the exact movements that are required in a basketball players range of motion on the court.

The pre-season program that we incorporate for the Rebels is a 5 station circuit program. On Mondays and Thursdays we concentrate on the upper body parts, the following exercises are used; bench press, dumbbell inclines, lat pull downs, bicep curls, and tricep extension, leg flexion, calf raises, and lunges. The athlete will do 2 sets of each exercise, the activity period is for 20 seconds per set, with a 12 second rest period. After the athlete completes both sets of the exercise they have 12 seconds to move to the next station. This process is continued until all 5 exercises have been completed. In a 20 second activity period each player should strive to get 10-12 repetitions. The amount of weight used for each exercise is determined by the trial and error method. An example of this would be if the athlete gets 15-16 repetitions during the 20 second activity period the weight being used is too light and must be increased. On the other hand if only 5-6 repetitions are being completed this is an indication that the weight is too heavy and must be decreased. It is because of the strength program incorporated in today's basketball programs that we see a major improvement in the players overall game. Here at UNLV we are very fortunate to recruit and have the great athletes who are then given the chance to improve themselves with excellent facilities, fine coaching, and a well rounded strength program. The opportunity is there for those who seek to search it out!

GOOD LUCK REBELS

Student-athletes have heavy demand placed on them by the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. Having recently celebrated its 25th anniversary, UNLV is a growing institution of higher education and with this growth all students are benefiting from a wide range of academic responsibilities being their first priority, members of the Rebel basketball team are required to take a full schedule of classes, while at the same time practicing, traveling, and competing in their sport. The university is committed to help and guidance of UNLV's academic consultants, all athletes at UNLV are distinguishing themselves in the classroom, not only on the playing field.

Athletics and Academics

UNLV became the first NCAA institution to place both male and female player in the first-team Academic All-America squad — Danny Tarkanian and Misty Thomas.

The 252,465 fans that attended the Runnin' Rebel home contests last year not only broke all existing UNLV crowd records, but ranked the Runnin Rebel in the Top 10 in attendance in the nation.

The UNLV counselors participate actively in the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics. Dr. Mayo also sits on the Executive Board of this organization. The staff works closely, not only with the coaches of their respective sports, but with all members of the UNLV academic community. This close working relationship with the UNLV faculty assures that our student-athletes will have every opportunity for success in the classroom as well as on the playing field. The success of UNLV student-athletes in the classroom is well documented. In the 1983-84 academic year, UNLV had two athletes named as academic All-Americans — one from the men's and from the women's basketball squads. This marked the first time any NCAA institution ever had this happen. Also, UNLV had a student-athlete awarded with the prestigious NCAA Post Graduate Scholarship and another student-athlete named as an alternate. UNLV was the only school in the nation to have two athletes so honored in the same year. These are only two of many such examples of the academic achievements of UNLV student-athletes. With the help and guidance of UNLV's academic consultants, all athletes at UNLV are distinguishing themselves in the classroom, not only on the playing field.

LAS VEGAS, THE CITY

The city of Las Vegas, Nevada is a thriving metropolis of nearly half-a-million permanent residents nestled in a desert valley near the southernmost tip of the state. Located in the scenic southwestern United States, Las Vegas is within a 30-mile radius of Lake Mead; the massive Hoover Dam and Colorado River recreational area; the snow skiing trails of 12,000 foot Mt. Charleston; and a panorama of red-rock mountains, eroded sandstone landscapes and replicas of old western towns. Also, within easy reach is the Southern California coastal areas, Arizona’s Grand Canyon, California’s Death Valley and Southern Utah’s Zion National Park.

First settled in 1855 as a missionary outpost of the Mormon Church, the city has grown into one of the premier entertainment spots in the world. Of course, everyone is familiar with the famed Las Vegas “Strip,” where renowned entertainers come to perform and the glamour and glitter is unsurpassed anywhere. Yet, the “Strip” is by no means the only means of entertainment. In many important ways, Las Vegas is like any other large city that is on the go. There is a rich cultural scene including art galleries, theatres, ballet and numerous musical organizations.

In addition, there are new museums, recreational parks, libraries, churches and hospitals making Las Vegas a city able to satisfy every taste.

Senior Tim Dobias hopes to regain the All-America status he achieved as a sophomore in the 200 individual medley.

FRUSTRATING EXPERIENCE

During our extensive remodeling program at McCarran Airport, passenger pick-up and drop-off can sometimes be a frustrating experience. The best advice is to have someone drive you to the airport (or take a taxi) and drop you off in front of the terminal.

ON YOUR RETURN

To avoid vehicular congestion and jangled nerves, pre-arrange to call someone when your plane arrives. By the time your baggage is sorted and delivered to the baggage pick-up area, your "side" can meet you at the exit to the baggage claim area and you can be on your way in a matter of moments.

FREE SHUTTLE BUS

In the meantime, free shuttle bus service is still being provided to all terminals every 5 minutes from the new parking area. This is one of the best ways to avoid congestion.
The University of Nevada, Las Vegas, has grown and developed in its relatively short history into one of the most dynamic urban universities in the Southwest. With some 11,000 students, a vigorous Continuing Education program, and an active performing arts complex, the university has become both the educational and cultural hub of southern Nevada.

Academic excellence has been a priority at UNLV since its inception as the Southern Regional University in 1957. When Maude Frazier came to UNLV to support academics and to attract Nevada's finest high school graduates, she was in the heart of the university's campaign to attract Nevada's finest high school graduates. The university has a distinguished faculty, more than the 400 men and women who are actively involved in teaching, research, and service.

Academics play the most vital role in UNLV's growth. Faculty members, 77 percent of whom hold doctorates, have come to UNLV from some of the nation's greatest universities; many have extensive experience in the professions in which they teach.

UNLV operates on the semester system, with a Mini Term offered between Spring and Fall semesters and two five-week sessions scheduled during the summer. Regular daytime classes are augmented by a strong evening program. Las Vegas residents by the thousands—some 15,000 annually, in fact—take advantage of the more than 500 credit and non-credit courses offered each year by the Division of Continuing Education. These "classes for people" are designed with a wide range of potential students in mind: teachers, nurses and other professionals who work full-time, and business people who want to gain expertise in new areas of business. As in all universities, people want to learn.

A MAN AND HIS TOWEL

Everybody wants to know about the Tarkanian trademark — Tark’s Towel. The towel dates back to Jerry Tarkanian’s Long Beach State days, when an ingenious manager devised it to help Coach’s mouth from getting dry. Actually, there are two towels; the one on top is wet (soaked in nothing more than tap water) and the one on the bottom is dry and is used simply to keep the wet one from sitting on the floor. The towel is wetted and folded (into fists, by the way) by a designated student-manager, who has learned the folding technique from a predecessor. The towels are handed to Coach Tarkanian as he enters the court at pre-game. The folder of the towel, most recently, is student-manager Barry Vaccaro, a junior from Pittsburgh, PA. Vaccaro adds that the towels are nothing more than plain, ordinary locker-room towels (but he does go through the stack to find the least raunchy one!).

UNLV Fight Song

On UNLV Fight
Lifting our voices high;
with a conquering hand of might
We raise our banner to the sky.
On UNLV Fight,
Charging triumphantly;
Fight, UNLV, Fight
For Victory.

Alma Mater: UNLV
Alma Mater, we praise you
For the spirit you have shown
You've given inspiration through the years
And with your knowledge we have grown.
Alma Mater, UNLV
May you continue in glory
Days of old, and days to be
We'll treasure your dignity.
Alma Mater, we'll remember you
When our student days are through
Hard times, good times
They'll be part of UNLV's call.

HAIL TO NEVADA
Hail to Nevada, the place I love the best.
Hail to Nevada, to the glory of the west.
We've got the state with all the personality.
That's why all the other folks are jealous as can be.
Hail to Nevada, her glory reigns supreme.
She is the lady who is always in our dreams.
We'll make you welcome if you'll only be our guest.
Come on by and you'll see why Nevada is the best.
Come on by—and you'll see why Nevada is the best.

WE'LL SPECIAL ORDER YOUR FAVORITE TEAM!!

AVIS, A COMPANY THAT TRIES HARDER, IS PROUD TO SUPPORT A TEAM THAT MAKES IT LOOK EASY.

Giving of ourselves enthusiastically is our trademark. In a phrase, we try harder. It's this code of ethics that winning teams are made of. But we're not telling you Rebels anything you don't know. What you may not know about is our low weekend rates (So low, in fact, they make Avis something of a rebel in itself.) They're yours for the asking at any of five convenient Avis locations: the Las Vegas International Airport, Caesars Palace, the Frontier, Las Vegas Hilton and MGM Grand Hotels.

Or call us locally at (702) 739-5595, or toll free from Southern California and out-of-state at (800) 331-1212. It's just one more way trying harder makes it easier on you.

Hi Mom!

I've found a really great apartment called Wildflower. They're brand new and close to everything, plus they have all the extras I enjoy—swimming pools, spas, tennis courts and more. I live in a studio, but they also have one, two and three bedrooms available, when I have a bigger budget! The picture of me and the beautiful surroundings shows you how happy I am here.

Love,
Me

Program Helps Deaf Children Reach Their Learning Potential

By Patricia Morgan

Las Vegas Review-Journal (Reprinted by Permission)

The sounds of his classroom are not lost on Kevin Guski — even though he has a severe hearing problem.

The 3-year-old Las Vegas is learning to use what little hearing he has so he can understand and talk to his preschool classmates at Clark County Community College.

"He does very well with the other children during work or play. Only his hearing aids give him away to the casual observer," said Kevin's mother, Linda Hyde, the wives of UNLV's Linda Hyde and Lois Tarkanian work with preschoolers (left) Linda and Kevin Guski and (right) Lois with Clark County Community College. and Tarkanian and Linda Hyde, the wives of UNLV's Linda Hyde and Lois Tarkanian work with preschoolers (left) Linda and Kevin Guski and (right) Lois with Clark County Community College. Tarkanian and Linda Hyde, the wives of UNLV's Linda Hyde and Lois Tarkanian work with preschoolers (left) Linda and Kevin Guski and (right) Lois with Clark County Community College.

Kevin's is part of SOUND Foundation, which stands for Breaking Out Unlimited Normal Development. The program is sponsored by parents of deaf children and operated by Lois Tarkanian and Linda Hyde, the wives of UNLV's basketball and football coaches.

"He shows, "Yes, you have a handicap, but you can overcome it,' and that's what I want for my son," Mary Guski says.

The program started two years ago after three parents sought the help of Tarkanian, a child advocate in Las Vegas for the Alexander Graham Bell Association. She has an extensive background in education and was director of the UNLV School for the deaf in Whittier, Calif.

Tarkanian says the program is a "tremendous success." She recruited Hyde to help teach.

"It is a little more intense in the students in this program, in including six in preschool. The rest are in kindergarten. All but one are considered profoundly deaf, which means they could stand next to a freight train and not hear it without hearing aids," Hyde explains.

"I consider it to be a graduate of the program in a kindergarten class at Whittier Elementary School this year.

"The ultimate goal is for a child to go to a regular neighborhood school," Hyde says.

Tarkanian estimates 98 percent of deaf children have some level of hearing that can be used in developed properly. She says "elective" programs have proved successful in Canada and other states in the U.S.

Special care is taken to ensure that children's hearing aids work properly. Continuing technological advances offer hope that as normal a life as possible can be achieved by the deaf," Tarkanian says.

Hyde tries to sit to the side of a student or cover his mouth so that child will be forced to listen rather than read lips, she says.

"Children spend part of their class day in the regular preschool program with youngsters who can hear normally. They also have time several hours a week to work individually with Hyde. The ratio is one deaf child to every 10 normal-hearing children in the regular preschool program.'" Tarkanian says, "Deaf children learn the most from classmates while not hindering their progress."

"The program begins teaching deaf children to recognize patterns of sound. "If you say, 'I love you,' they might hear 'Mmmmmm,'" Tarkanian explains. Eventually, children learn to distinguish individual words and sounds, she adds.

"Such a thing must begin as easy as possible for maximum results," Tarkanian stresses, where primary language skills are learned between the ages of 1½ and 2½. "Children can tell in a year or two if a child is making progress developing his residual hearing, or if some other method of communication should be pursued," Tarkanian says. A child's success also depends on how much time his family can devote to him.

Kevin was not quite 2 when his family enrolled him in the program. The Guski's had learned about Tarkanian when approached by a stranger who noticed Kevin's hearing aids at a restaurant.

"He knew no more than 10 words when he joined the program," his mother recalls. Now, he says, he can express any of his own thoughts, speak in connected sentences, offer greetings in connected sentences, offer greetings and give commands to other children. His vocabulary continues to grow.

Tarkanian predicts Kevin will be ready for preschool after mastering as many

"I'm not going to be easy for these children. They're not going to hear things, they're going to have bumps," Still, Tarkanian sees far more pluses than minuses in the program. "One of her favorite stories concerns Cathy getting her elementar...y school one day.

"She said, 'For me? For me? Cathy sees miracles,'" Tarkanian says.

Introducing the biggest single burger in fast food history.

Wendy's, eat your heart out.

A 1/3 Pound Western Bacon Cheeseburger.

If you’ve been looking for the beef, you just found it in Carl's new 1/3 Pound Western Bacon Cheeseburger. The first thing you'll notice is a bigger beef patty—30% bigger than what you've had to settle for at Wendy's. Burger King, McDonald's and Jack-in-the-Box. It's thicker, the way you'd make it yourself. But the 1/3 Pound Western Bacon Cheeseburger doesn't stop with the addition of cheese and two whole strips of bacon. Crisp onion rings with Hickory barbecue sauce make it absolutely one-of-a-kind.

Try one. It isn't like any other hamburger you've ever tasted. Because it's a burger the way a burger ought to be.

At one time, Tim Grigurich was going to toss it in. Maybe he'd coach a high school where his biggest worry would be teaching 16-year-old kids how to go to their left. Maybe he'd join a friend in business, leaving home at 8, coming home at 5 and spending time with his wife and two daughters. He didn't suffer burnout. He was only 34.

Call it a romance gone sour, one that started as a freshman at the University of Pittsburgh and ended there after 11 years of coaching.

If you look a slice out of Grigurich might still bleed Pit blue, but first he bled Rebal red. He has rediscovered his love for basketball at UNLV where in four years he's turned into what Coach Jerry Tarkanian says is "the best assistant I've ever had."

Which raises an interesting question: Can a blue-collar guy who coached a blue-collar team in a blue-collar town find happiness as an assistant in a city where tinsel outweighs grit, 10-1?

"I just wanted to be in a good basketball situation where I know the coaches are treated right, players are treated right and you have an opportunity to win," said Grigurich, sitting in his office on a bright and early Tuesday morning. "A lot of coaches out there are great coaches but no one knows it because they don't have the resources. They're getting screwed. They can't take care of their players, they can't take care of their coaches, they can't take care of their families. They (the schools) don't care about the game."

"I told people it's better to be an assistant coach in a place that loves basketball than to a place where they don't care because eventually, you'll lose."

Grigurich is tied to Pittsburgh but still so strong for him to knock the city or the school. He even looks and sounds Pittsburgh.

He has that deep raspy voice with a hint of a homey ethnic neighbor­hood that loveability is more valued than flaws.

UNLV landed Grigurich after he coach­ed Pitt for five years and had a 52-30 mark his last three seasons. He was named Pitts­burgh Basketball Writers Coach of the Year in 1975-76, 1977-78 and 1978-79 yet despite the success, the Pitt administration never made a financial commitment to basketball.

He hustled camps and clinics for scholar­ship money. He slept in his car on recruiting trips. And after he bashed his head against the wall one too many times, he resigned.

"I wasn't going to coach," Grigurich said. "I was going to take a high school job. It was the situation I put myself in. Being in a school a long period of time, I wanted to get away from that situation."

He didn't take the job. Sonny Vaccaro, who runs the Dapper Dan High School Basketball Classic in Pittsburgh, is a good friend of Tarkanian and called. Tarkanian met Grigurich while serving as the technical adviser for the movie "The Fish That Stole Pittsburgh" and hired him.

As a head assistant, Grigurich does a lit­tle of everything: teaching, scouting, recruiting, planning. He does everything but get credit.

"He's the hardest-working guy I've ever seen in my life," Tarkanian said. "He has zero ego. I like taking head coaches. Ever since I've had my problems with the NCAA I've taken twin coaches. They tried to get me out of the game, and I had no other in­terest in life and I know how that hurt me."

Grigurich's energy is legendary. He regularly get up at dawn to work out at the Sporting House before going to the office, and he jogs nearly everyday. When sports writers were flagging down cabs for the two­block ride to Utah's gym in 19-degree weather, Grigurich was getting ready for his morning run.

He's just as active in town.

"I've never seen a guy with that much energy," said part­time assistant Bud Pressley who shares Grigurich's office. "I wish I was as good."

ON THE JOB TRAINING

by Michael DiChiaro

Assistant Sports Information Director

Who was hurt, what the extent of the injury is, an assessment of what the athlete can and cannot do, and what treatment is needed.

There is also a notebook in which all rehabilitation records of the athletes are kept. The various files for all athletes go as far back as seven years, mostly for the trainers to use any information they would need for treatment given months or even years after the last.

"We also keep a complete record of medications given to the athletes," said Wilson. "We only give out over-the-counter medications unless we get a doctor's approval to give a prescription medication.

The trainers can evaluate and diagnose just about every injury, barring bone problems. In those cases, Koloskie or one of his assistants will recommend that the athlete be sent for a x-ray of the injured area.

Working with Koloskie and Wilson is Assistant Athletic Trainer Peanut Boyer, who is in his second year with the training staff. Boyer earned his Bachelor of Science from the University of Pittsburgh in 1979 and Master of Science from West Virginia University in 1980.

"We have a great tradition here (at UNLV)," said Boyer. "We each have our own responsibilities but any athlete can come in here and talk to any of us (Wilson or Koloskie). It's different from some other situations I've been in.

"My main responsibility is women's sports and women's basketball in particular. I've always been involved with all sports but I'm in constant contact with the team doctors and we work with them when the injury is more extensive.

"UNLV's training facility now possesses the sophisticated equipment needed to perform most treatment and rehabilitation service on sight. Among the advantages the Cybermed, which is used for testing the athlete in the rehabilitation -- and the Joby Cavo Temp Unit -- which is used to treat acute injuries right when they happen.

There was a time when I first arrived here where we didn't have the necessary equipment and we would have to take the athletes off campus," explained Huvorza. "Now, thanks largely to the cooperation from the athletic department and the community, we have the necessary equipment needed to compete with any other major college program.

Being a trainer takes a tremendous amount of dedication due to the high amount of hours that are put into the job. While a student trainer you need a basic minimum -- in UNLV's program -- of 800 hours under the direction of a head trainer. According to Koloskie, however, a typical student trainer in UNLV's three year program will amass around 2,000 to 3,000 hours of work experience.

The first year of student training is spent doing the so-called "dirty" jobs. Everyday tasks such as making ice-bags, taping athletes and learning to use all of the equipment are the things needed to be done. By the time a student trainer reaches his second and third years, they have had the classes needed to evaluate most common injuries.

If the students usually don't evaluate until their junior or senior year," said Wilson. "By that time they should have had some evaluation classes and can do things within their capability.

With 15 integrate men's and women's sports to take care of, the UNLV training staff is spread quite thinly. The sports with the highest demand are, according to Koloskie, basketball, football and soccer, due to a much higher injury rate than the other sports.

"With the other non-revenue sports, injury rates for instance, are very low and they are still just as important," Koloskie said. "We cover all of the sports and there are a lot of athletes and a lot of equipment are both in the air in the air at all times as far as need of a student trainer, you can and cannot do things within their ability.

The 1984-85 UNLV Lady Rebel Basketball team hopes to go one step further this season. In 1982-83, the Lady Rebels 24-4 mark was the most successful record in the program's history. In 1983-84, the Lady Rebels won the first ever PCWA Women's Basketball Champions, advancing to the first round of the NCAA Tournament (another Lady Rebel first). In this 1984-85 season the UNLV Lady Rebels will attempt to conquer another step toward their goal of climbing to the top of the collegiate basketball world.

"We've tasted two years of success," Lady Rebel Co-Head Coach Jim Bolle said. "We finally made it to the NCAA Tournament. Now that we know what it's like to get there, we have to take it one step further."

Last year was indeed a banner season for the Lady Rebels. The team started the year with a string of six consecutive wins, compiled a perfect 4-0 conference record and ended the year with a 24-7 slate. Despite a 7-8 finish in the first round of the NCAA Tournament to California State Long Beach, the 1983-84 campaign was overshadowed by one of the most prosperous ever for UNLV Women's Basketball.

This year's edition of UNLV Lady Rebel Basketball will differ slightly from the 1983-84 team, but will maintain the "theme" of success. "We will be smaller this year than last," Bolle said. "But we'll offset our height by using more skilled players at all the positions."

There will be many other noticeable revisions in the 1984-85 edition of Lady Rebel Basketball. "One of the biggest changes will be the quicker pace."

"We're going to play an up-tempo game this season," Bolle explained. "Our plan is to use speed and quickness. We hope to be quick both offensively and defensively, we'll try to get up and down the court very fast. The different style we hope to play should encourage a quicker pace. Whether it be a half-court or full-court press, we will keep a fast pace and try to create turnovers.

An up-tempo style of play will mandate more frequent substitutions even the fastest players will not run out of team. "We may have to substitute another. "We're going to have to play at least eight players consistently," Bolle said.

Once again, the Lady Rebels will be led by All-America candidates Kathy Thomas, Thomas, 5-11, junior, and Winnie, Ontario, Canada, has guided the team for the past two years in the point guard slot. Last year, she compiled 15.5 points per game, 63 rebounds per game and broke the school season record with 190 in 1983-84 (beating Shelly Powell's old record of 176 set in 1982-83). Thomas also earned All-District, All-American and Academic All-American on the Rebel Men's team, they became the first-ever Academic All-Americans in the country.

Danya Monroe, a 6-2 junior, returns and will add leadership to this year's squad. Monroe finished the 1983-84 season as the Lady Rebels top rebounder (85 rebounds per game) and third leading scorer (118 points per game). Also returning are sophomores Angela Christian (6-2) and Charlotte "Nancy" Blair (5-8). Christian saw action last season as the back-up power forward and tallied 71 points and 52 rebounds per game. Blair was a substitute point guard and compiled 38 points and 1.2 rebounds per game.

Adding depth to this year's squad are junior Jackie Teaf (6-4) and Kathy Lavan (6-1). Teaf saw limited action last season at the center position, but will be used more extensively this season. Lavan was a backup forward and tallied 41 points and 2.7 rebounds per game.

The Lady Rebels have compensated for the loss of five better players with a quality recruiting class. Joining the squad is one of the finest prep school players in the nation, April Hall, a 5-5 point guard, and Jarka Hnizdak, a 6-4 forward/forward. Hall played all four years for Alcorn State in Mississippi where she compiled 1,824 points and 575 steals and was a four year starter. She was selected to the "Fabulous Five" by the Pittsburgh Post Gazette and was heavily recruited by women's basketball programs in the West. Hnizdak, from Galatin HS in Galatin, Tenn., was a Parade All-American and an Academic All-American.

Over her four year career at Galatin, she broke every school record (except in free throw percentage) and averaged 18.9 points per game.

Also new to the Lady Rebel attack force will be Shaunah Crawford and Lisa Rhymers. Crawford will be a transfer from California State University, Chico, will enter UNLV as a junior and will see action at the forward slot. Rhymers (5-8), a native of the Virgin Islands, is what Bolle calls "raw talent with much potential."

Senior forwards Kita Silver (5-10), forward guard and Saundra McPherson (5-7 guard), both of Las Vegas, will provide the necessary bench strength this season.

One factor that is missing from the 1984-85 Lady Rebel roster — seniors — is one that most teams consider essential. The Lady Rebels, however, do not consider the absence of senior players a crucial factor — leadership capabilities are found in every class.

"Both Misty (Thomas) and Donna (Monroe) have shown leadership even as freshmen," Bolle said. "We're basically a young team, but we're counting on other players like Nancy (Blair) and Angela (Christian) assuming some leadership duties."

"We haven't had the luxury of having seniors, losing them and re-building the team as of yet," Bolle continued. "We're still young and not in an established team. We're still building and will be building even next year."

The Lady Rebels may not be as established as personnel dynasties, but they share one thing in common — the spirit of women's collegiate basketball — "We recruit athletes not just shooters and rebounders," Bolle said. "The team will never be complacent — they want to get better every year. I think the players are starting to get there now."

The Lady Rebels realize that in order to be considered "Top-20" caliber, they must face Top-20 competition. This year, as years past, will be a stiff challenge. Powerhouses such as Texas, Louisiana Tech, Penn State, Alabama and Ohio State are just a few of the teams the Lady Rebels will face in 1984-85. In addition to the strong competition, the Lady Rebels will make eight road trips this season compared to the regular three or four years past.

For the 1984-85 Lady Rebels achievements such as consecutive conference title and a Top-20 ranking would be great. For now, the Lady Rebels hope simply to go one step further.

The UNLV Rebels are extremely proud to announce a new partnership with Big-Time Sports Productions and KDWN Radio. Big-Time Sports, KDWN and UNLV will combine to give listeners all of the action for both UNLV football and basketball. Producing Rebel games for Big-Time Sports is its president and founder Len Howard, who has formed his company exclusively for Rebel sports — and Rebel athletics will be a full-time endeavor for Howard, who is well known to Rebel fans as the "Voice of Rebel Basketball." Howard’s company — Big-Time Sports Productions — was in fact named by former UNLV basketball star Sidney Green. Joining Howard in the broadcast booth for the Runnin’ Rebels as color commentator will be his associate Larry Dubee.

In the broadcast booth for Rebel football returns the very popular team of Randy Rosenbloom and Al Roberts. The association of KDWN Radio with UNLV athletics will provide the Rebels with a 50 thousand watt clear channel, providing exposure for UNLV throughout Nevada, California, and as far east as Phoenix, adding millions of listeners to the Rebel game coverage, extending the Rebels from their already popular local profile, into the national picture, with coverage all over the west. Helping Hand

As a dynamic urban university, the University of Nevada, Las Vegas recognizes that today's students not only attend classes, but they also juggle careers, families and outside activities.

While many enter college right out of high school, others are returning after several years in the workforce. This creates a need for specialized advising for a diverse group of students, and UNLV delivers it.

Jim Kitchen, director of the Academic Advising and Resources Center, helps students decide which courses to take and which fields to consider as major study areas. He specializes in assisting students make the transition to university-level work.

"We are dealing with students who are undecided about their majors. They may be exceptionally bright, but they are totally undecided about what they want to go into. So we advise them on the proper sequence of courses to take that will lead toward a major and, at the same time, fulfill general core requirements.

In addition to serving as a resource to current UNLV students, Jim and his staff operate the Early Studies Program, which allows talented high school students to take beginning-level classes on campus.

"We're doing everything we can to attract academically talented students to UNLV. Through the Early Studies Program we give these students a chance to get a bird's eye view of what UNLV is all about. Our goal is to make their transition from high school to college as smooth as possible."

Jim knows the counseling and study aids available at the center can make the difference between success and failure for students in their first year or two.

"A lot of students coming into the university are scared, but when they see there are people who will help guide and nurture them, it's not nearly as intimidating," he says.

"I make students feel welcome at the university. My policy is, when students come to me or to any of our staff for help, they will leave completely satisfied that they have been given the proper advice and guidance in their academic career."
