The Boys and Girls Club is a nonprofit organization for youth that works to aid the families in the community by providing programs to keep the children away from the streets. The organization and the staffs desire to show hope for a better future and teach positive behaviors to the children.

Throughout this fall semester, I volunteered at John D. Jackie Gaughan Clubhouse to help out the staffs supervise and tutor the children participating in the program. It was an eye opening experience and reminded me how blind I was to think that those who are in need are half away around the globe in the third world countries. People who require our help the most are right around us.

“Boys and Girls Club of Southern Nevada enables all young people, especially those who need us the most, to reach their full potential as productive, caring, responsible citizens.”

Learning Outcomes:
• Raise social awareness of urban youth poverty
• Ways to communicate and interact with young children
• Better understanding of different groups of the next generation
• Ways to help the nearby community
