NEVADA MEDICAL RESIDENCIES, 2021-2022

Health Fact Sheet No. 18 | October 2022

Prepared by: Katie M. Gilbertson, Geneva Martin, Caitlin J. Saladino, and William E. Brown, Jr.

PURPOSE:

This fact sheet highlights medical residency data for the 2021 and 2022 graduating classes of the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV) and the University of Nevada, Reno (UNR) School of Medicine. This fact sheet highlights the number of residency program matches at the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV and the UNR School of Medicine in 2021 and 2022 and reveals where Nevada medical school students pursue their residencies.

ABOUT THE DATA:

Medical students pursuing medical residencies within a state is an important indicator of future healthcare capacity. After medical school students graduate, they pursue a medical residency in a specialty to gain additional skills and hands-on training. Medical residencies are completed at a school or clinic and typically last three to four years. The State of Nevada has two allopathic medical schools: the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV and the UNR School of Medicine. A significant number of graduates from these two schools pursue residencies in Nevada. Students who do so are far more likely to establish their medical practice in Nevada and alleviate the current shortage of doctors. This fact sheet utilizes match-day data from both Nevada medical schools for the classes of 2021 and 2022. UNR data are available from the School of Medicine's 2021 Residency Match Results and 2022 Match Day Results publications.¹ The Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV provided data on residency locations for medical students.²

KEY FINDINGS:

1. In 2022, graduates of the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV were matched to 61 residency programs, with the majority (23) of those placements (37.7%) located in Nevada. The second most frequent location of residency programs for UNLV graduates was California (6 residency programs, 9.8%).
2. In 2022, graduates of the UNR School of Medicine were matched to 70 residency programs, with 11 of those placements (15.7%) located in Nevada. The majority of residency programs for UNR graduates were located in California (16 residency programs, 22.9%).
3. In 2021, graduates of the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV were matched to 55 residency programs, with 19 of those placements (34.5%) located in Nevada. The second most frequent location of residency programs for UNLV graduates was California (9 residency programs, 16.4%).
4. In 2021, graduates of the UNR School of Medicine were matched to 67 residency programs, with 9 of those placements (13.4%) located in Nevada. The majority of residency programs for UNR graduates were located in California (24 residency programs, 35.8%).
5. For the 2021 and 2022 graduating classes, 36.2% of residency programs for graduates of the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV are located in Nevada, while 14.6% of residency programs for UNR School of Medicine graduates are located in-state.

Table 1 and the subsequent pie charts provide medical residency match-day data for the 2021 and 2022 graduating classes of the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV and the UNR School of Medicine.³ “In-state” refers to residency programs located in Nevada, while “out-of-state” refers to residency programs in another state. For the 2021 and 2022 graduating classes, 36.2% of residency programs for graduates of the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV are located in Nevada, while 14.6% of residency programs for UNR School of Medicine graduates are located in-state.

³ The Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV graduated 50 medical students in 2021, and graduated 55 medical students in 2022. Based on their area of medical specialization, some medical school graduates are matched to a preliminary or transitional program assignment in addition to their residency placement, which is why the number of residency placements noted in Table 1 differ from the total number of graduates.

Table 2 highlights the residency disciplines pursued by students at the Kirk Kerkorian School of Medicine at UNLV and students at the UNR School of Medicine in 2021 and 2022. The top discipline across both schools and years was internal medicine with 45 overall matches. The second and third most common specializations were family medicine (32 overall matches) and emergency medicine (30 overall matches). Disciplines tied for the lowest number of residencies (1) include child neurology, medicine-pediatrics, neurological surgery, pathology, and physical medicine and rehabilitation.

Table 3 lists the discipline, residency program, and geographic location of residency matches for the 2021 graduating class of the UNR School of Medicine. In 2021, graduates of the UNR School of Medicine were matched to 67 residency programs, with 9 of those placements (13.4%) located in Nevada. The majority of residency programs for UNR graduates were located in California (24 residency programs, 35.8%). The most matched discipline is emergency medicine (10 matches), followed by internal medicine (9 matches).

Table 4 lists the discipline, residency program, and geographic location of residency matches for the 2022 graduating class of the UNR School of Medicine. In 2022, graduates of the UNR School of Medicine were matched to 70 residency programs, with 11 of those placements (15.7%) located in Nevada. The majority of residency programs for UNR graduates were located in California (16 residency programs, 22.9%). The most matched discipline is internal medicine (12 matches), followed by emergency medicine (10 matches).
