A MESSAGE FROM UNLV PRESIDENT
DR. ROBERT C. MAXSON

Dear Friends of UNLV:

I am happy to have this opportunity to express my greetings to you and to convey my best wishes to Coach Tarkanian and the Rebel basketball team for another successful basketball season. UNLV's exceptional record of achievement in its athletic programs has greatly advanced the visibility and pride in this institution and has instilled deep loyalty and pride in the hearts of many throughout the city and region.

We are aware, however, that this excellent basketball program is part of a broader success story, the remarkable growth and development within the last quarter century of the University of Nevada, Las Vegas as an important urban university city of Nevada. Las Vegas is proud to call our home. I have served on many occasions that my administration is absolutely committed to the further development of UNLV as a first-rate academic institution which will serve the residents of southern Nevada, our state and our nation as a center of excellence for teaching, learning, and research. The residents of this community who have supported this institution so generously over the years deserve nothing less.

This is truly one of the most exciting times in the history of our University. We are at a turning point from which we must push ahead toward greater excellence as an institution of higher learning. I invite all of you to join as we endeavor to build an ever stronger foundation of academic excellence for UNLV. I have no doubt that with all your support and the efforts of our fine faculty and staff, the University of Nevada, can and will become a University of the first class.

Sincerely,

Robert C. Maxson
UNLV President

UNLV WELCOMES A NEW PRESIDENT!
DR. ROBERT C. MAXSON

Dr. Robert C. Maxson assumed the Presidency of the University of Nevada, Las Vegas August 1, 1984. He was previously Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs of the University of Houston.

Dr. Maxson received his doctorate from Mississippi State University in 1970. His major areas of academic interest and study have been educational administration and social psychology. Dr. Maxson and wife, Sylvia, have two children, Tod (20) and Kim (16).
UNLV DIRECTOR OF INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS

Dr. Brad Rothermel

For the 1983-84 academic year, the University of Nevada, Las Vegas has had each of its fourteen intercollegiate sports, with only two exceptions, represented in post-season, national competition. In addition, exactly half of those sports were ranked nationally in the top 20 at one time or another. Much of the credit for this outstanding intercollegiate record goes to UNLV's Director of Intercollegiate Athletics, Dr. Brad Rothermel.

Rothermel, now entering his fifth year as UNLV's Athletic Director, has built UNLV athletics to the point where the university is now very competitive at both the conference and national levels.

Rothermel's philosophy while at UNLV has been that the function of the intercollegiate athletic program is to provide for student-athletes an environment in which those student-athletes are able to pursue excellence in selected extracurricular educationally related athletic activities. Furthermore, his objective for the programs is to win within the structure of the rules and the budgetary framework provided. The achievement of this goal is demonstrated by successfully competing against national championship caliber competition in all activities sponsored by the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Prior to his appointment at UNLV in 1981, he was Associate Director and Business Manager for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics at West Virginia University. From 1974 to 1976 he was employed as Assistant Director and Business Manager for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics at Kansas State University.

Rothermel supervised the intercollegiate athletic programs for men and women while serving as Director of the Division of Health and Physical Education at George Williams College in Downers Grove, Illinois, from 1971 to 1974.

From 1965 to 1967, he served as Supervisor of Counseling and Research Development while functioning in the capacity of Assistant Athletic Director of the University of Illinois Athletic Association. Prior to that position he was an administrative associate and coach for the Chicago National League Baseball Ball Club, Inc. (Chicago Cubs).

In addition to his above mentioned athletic positions, Rothermel has served as an administrator in numerous educational, recreational, and financial environments. He also possesses coaching and experience as a competitor at all levels from elementary school through the professional ranks.

Rothermel received his Ph.D. in 1965 and a M.S. degree in 1961 from the College of Applied Human Life Sciences at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana. He received his B.S. from Northern Illinois University in 1960.

Rothermel and his wife, Suzanne, a kindergarten teacher in the Clark County District, have two daughters; Beth, 15, and Christine, 11.

For all of us here in Nevada, living the life we want often means something a little different. But it always means something special. Most of all, it means working together. And no matter the life you choose to live, First Interstate Bank of Nevada is committed to helping you live it. Maybe it's making a move for the better with the help of a home improvement loan. Or planning for retirement with one of our IRAs. For some, it's a new car or recreational vehicle. Or a college education with a government-backed student loan offered only through First Interstate Bank of Nevada. Perhaps it's financial strength for that growing business. Or a consumer banking package that fits your individual needs. First Interstate Bank of Nevada and you. Working together to help you live the life you want. Just as we've been doing for the past eighty-two years.
Automobile dealers in Las Vegas are contributing a large measure of help to the UNLV Athletic Program with membership in the UNLV C.A.R.S. (Courtesy Auto Resource System) Ltd. program — the loan of courtesy cars. Like other programs which are a part of Rebel booster activities, this project enables the UNLV Athletic Department to make greater use of its funds. These sports-minded dealers have earned a debt of gratitude from the Rebel Athletic Department. They are an important part of the "Team" that helps make UNLV athletics so successful.

The PCAA, now entering its 16th year, is developing into one of the strongest Division I conferences in the nation. Since 1978, the PCAA has grown from an all California League to a league that has members from four states in the western part of the nation. The leagues' newest member, New Mexico State, will participate in conference football for the first time in the 1984 season.

In addition to New Mexico State, the other PCAA members are California State University, Fullerton; California State University, Long Beach; Fresno State University; San Jose State University; University of California, Irvine; University of California, Santa Barbara; University of Nevada, Las Vegas; University of the Pacific and Utah State University. Lewis A. Cryer, who begins his seventh year as Commissioner of the PCAA, has overseen the conferences' phenomenal growth during his tenure. Under his guidance, the PCAA has grown in stature to rival some of the more established conferences in the nation. The PCAA has also recently added championships for women's basketball, swimming and track and field and is currently working to expand the PCAA women's league.

Working in the PCAA office with Cryer are: Assistant Commissioner Dennis Farrell; Supervisor of Football Officials Jack O'Cain; Supervisor of Basketball Officials John Dangleis; Assistant to the Commissioner Jody Harter; Administrative Assistant Dodie Hayes and Secretary Michele Schrimpf-Scott.

The conference office is located at 1700 East Dyer Road, Suite 140, Santa Ana, California and the phone number is (714) 261-2525.

Without certain traditions, a Runnin' Rebel game just wouldn't be the same. Last season a new tradition was added, which has become a favorite part of the pre-game hoopla. Thanks to Mr. George Gerringer, the Runnin' Rebels enter the Thomas and Mack Center on their own red carpet, as we ROLL OUT THE RED CARPET FOR YOUR RUNNIN' REBELS. Mr. Gerringer crafted and donated the red carpet for the Rebels.

Another time-honored tradition is the pre-game light show, which is a carry-over from the days the Rebels played in the Convention Center, where the original pre-game lighting was designed by Art Rader.

RUNNIN' REBEL BASKETBALL: BEST IN THE WEST

Rarely when a team loses four of its top nine players to graduation is there much cause for optimism, but University of Nevada, Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian's 1984-85 Runnin' Rebels are an exception.

Once again, it appears that the Runnin' Rebels will live up to their nickname as this will be one of the quickest UNLV teams that Tarkanian has coached. Moreover, the fact that this squad is filled with good shooters may make it comparable to Tarkanian's 1976-77 Rebel team which averaged 112 points per game and reached the Final Four.

Gone from the 1983-84 squad, which captured the PCAA regular season championship and advanced to the NCAA Western Regionals before losing to eventual national champion Georgetown University, are starting guards Danny Tarkanian (the school's all-time steal and assist leader) and Jeff Collins, as well as part-time starters center Paul Brozovich and swingman Eric Booker. All four were drafted by NBA teams. Also gone from the 29-4 team is reserve guard Tom Roberts.

Despite the losses, Tarkanian, the 1983-84 Basketball Times and PCAA Coach-of-the-Year, feels confident about his team's ability to match last year's success.

"We do return five players who contributed a great deal to our team last year," Tarkanian noted. "In addition to those, we have some fine redshirts who we hope can step in and offset the loss of the seniors.

Heading the impressive list of returnees is All-America candidate Richie Adams (SR, 6-9, 225), the PCAA Player-of-the-Year and Tournament MVP last season. According to Tarkanian, Adams, who led UNLV in both scoring and rebounding last year, will be a major factor in the squad's success in the 1984-85 season.

"Richie has a tremendous amount of ability. With him, it's just a matter of how good he wants to be. But, we'll just have to wait and see how he responds," Tarkanian said.

Also returning for the Rebels this season are forwards E-5 Catchings (SR, 6-4, 201) and Frank "Spoon" James (SR, 6-6, 187), seniors last year in 21 and 25 games respectively. Additionally, two players who made outstanding progress in 1983-84, center John Flowers (SR, 6-10, 235) and guard Fred Banks (SO, 6-2, 156), will be back. UNLV will also have guard Ricky Collins (SO, 6-4, 185), who showed promise as a freshman last year.

The Rebels will also have the services of five outstanding redshirts from last season: Anthony Jones (JR, 6-6, 195), a transfer from Georgetown; Eldridge Hudson (SO, 6-4, 212), who sat out last year recovering from a knee injury; Richard Robinson (FR, 6-9, 206), who played in five games last season before contracting mononucleosis and being declared a medical redshirt; Gary Graham (SO, 6-4, 185), who played in 26 games as a freshman during the 1982-83 season; and Armon Gilliam (SO, 6-4, 230), a transfer from Independence Junior College in Kansas.

In addition, the Rebels signed two recruits to add depth to the squad in Lethen Symanski, a 6-8 forward from Orange Coast Junior College, and Chris Fancher, a 6-0 guard from Crawford County High School in Marengo, Indiana.

Tarkanian feels that this combination of players could form an excellent team, but recognizes the possible problems.

"I think we have the potential to be a very good team. We have good depth, good size and good quickness. These factors should allow us to set the pace in most games and play more aggressively on defense than we have in the past. We'll certainly have the opportunity to substitute more freely so that all of our players can stay fresh," said Tarkanian.

Head Coach Jerry Tarkanian is known for putting his talent to work when the game becomes close. With nearly 600 career coaching victories, Tarkanian earns all the honors bestowed upon him. Most recently, he has been named the PCAA's Coach-of-the-Year (1984) and Basketball Times' Coach-of-the-Year (1984).

"I don't think that we have any major weaknesses, but we do have some question marks. Eldridge (Hudson) is still recovering from his injury, and his status for the season is unknown. We also need to get some good leadership, but I'm not sure who will step up to provide that. We're really counting on Freddie (Banks) and Gary (Graham) to handle the point guard position for us. However, it's very important that Freddie improve on his defense from last year," Tarkanian said.

Another obstacle the Rebels will encounter is one of the strongest schedules in UNLV history. In addition to the always competitive PCAA schedule, the Rebels non-conference opponents include Georgetown, Maryland, San Diego State, Kansas State and Colorado State. Understandably, Tarkanian is concerned.

"This is one of the toughest schedules we've ever faced. Practically all of the non-conference teams have improved since last year, and we have some super non-conference teams coming in here. In addition to those, we will be making a trip to Georgetown for a rematch with the defending NCAA champs."

Tarkanian's staff includes his son, John, Assistant Coach John Tarkanian,绢nian's son, and a talented group of young assistants.

The Rebels' greatest strength will be their speed, which should be reflected in their fast-breaking ability. In addition, the Rebels will have some fine rebounders and will be aggressive on the boards.

Despite the loss of Tarkanian's star players, the Runnin' Rebels will be one of the toughest tests any team will face in the 1984-85 season.

Lifting Weights The Rebel Basketball Way
By Dennis Wagner and Tim Wilson — UNLV Strength Coaches

Former Rebel Sidney Green demonstrates the hip sled.

The University of Nevada, Las Vegas basketball strength program consists basically of two programs, the off-season and the pre-season programs. Each program is set up to utilize the student athletes time while getting a maximum effort in the weight room.

During the off-season the objectives for the athlete are numerous. First and most obvious are the physical changes that are needed. Physical changes that should occur include increases in strength, speed, agility, reaction time, cardiovascular endurance and flexibility. These changes give the athlete the confidence in his performance to be successful on the basketball court.

Here at UNLV the off-season program consists of a 4 day a week station circuit program. On Mondays and Thursdays the following upper body exercises are used: bench press, incline press, bench flies, shoulder press and shoulder raises. Tuesdays and Fridays are lower body days; hip sled, leg extension, leg flexion, and lunges. This routine is very demanding and therefore requires phases and cycles for the athlete to reach his lifting potential during the periodization. Without phases and cycles in a lifting program, the athlete will reach plateaus, become discouraged and in many cases avoid the weight room. Phases consist of reps, sets, and intensity. Cycles consist of days you wish to lift and the number of weeks/ phases in each cycle. The periodization is determined by the number of weeks in your program. The UNLV basketball program consists of 3 cycles (8 weeks) which completes the first periodization. The second periodization starts with cycle 1 and will run an additional 6 weeks. Thus making the total off season heavy program 12 weeks long. The intensity level for each exercise is measured by the amount of weight lifted in the set and the total poundage of each set divided by the total repetitions this equals the total poundage.

The pre-season program that we use during pre-season is for each exercise is measured by the amount of weight lifted in the set by the amount of repetitions. The intensity level for each exercise is measured by the amount of weight lifted in the set by the amount of repetitions. The intensity level for each exercise is measured by the amount of weight lifted in the set by the amount of repetitions.

12 second rest period. After the athlete completes both sets of the exercise they have 12 seconds to move to the next station. This pre-season program is continued until all 5 exercises have been completed. In a 20 second activity period each player should strive to get 10-12 repetitions. The amount of weight used for each exercise is determined by the trial and error method. An example of this would be if the athlete gets 15-16 repetitions during the 20 second activity period the weight being used is too light and must be increased. On the other hand if only 5-6 repetitions are being completed this is an indication that the weight is too heavy and must be decreased.

It is because of the strength program incorporated in today’s basketball programs that we see a major improvement in the players overall game. Here at UNLV we are very fortunate to recruit and have the great athletes who are then given the chance to improve themselves with excellent facilities, fine coaching, and a well rounded strength program. The opportunity is there for those who seek to search it out!

Athletics and Academics

Student-athletes have heavy demand placed on them by the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. Having recently celebrated its 25th anniversary, UNLV is a growing institution of higher education. UNLV has benefited from a wide range of academic responsibilities being their first priority, and members of the Rebel basketball team are required to take a full schedule of classes, while at the same time practicing, traveling and competing in their sport. The university is committed to having these student athletes make progress toward their selected degree while at UNLV.

In recent years, the basketball program at UNLV has made a major commitment to the academic achievement of its student-athletes. In 1981, the academic program for basketball was initiated with the hiring of a full-time academic advisor. This past fall, the program was extended to include two full-time counselors along with a part-time graduate assistant. Dr. Ann Mayo began her first year as Athletic Academic Consultant in the Fall of 1984 after serving in a similar capacity at the Ohio State University for the past five years. She is in charge of a program which systematically diagnoses and assesses the academic status of student-athletes, monitors their academic progress, assists in scheduling, provides athletes, monitors their academic progress assists in scheduling, provides tutoring and study table, and challenges students to pursue a major which they find interesting and exciting.

Assistant Dr. Mayo with these responsibilities is Cleveland Edwards, a former basketball player and assistant coach at the University of Pittsburgh. The third member of the staff is a part of one of the largest athletic academic counseling units in the country. This unit also includes two football advisors, Dr. Andy Nixon and Theo Gregory, Roz Cohn in women’s basketball, and Jacqueline Newton, who advises all other varsity sports. The UNLV counselors participate actively in the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics. Dr. Mayo also sits on the Executive Board of this organization.

The staff works closely, not only with the coaches of their respective sports, but with all members of the UNLV academic community. This close working relationship with the UNLV faculty assures that our student-athletes will have every opportunity for success in the classroom as well as on the playing field.

The success of UNLV student-athletes in the classroom is well documented. In the 1983-84 academic year, UNLV had two athletes named as academic All-Americans—one from the men’s and from the women’s basketball squads. This marked the first time any NCAA institution ever had this happen. Also, UNLV had a student-athlete awarded with the prestigious NCAA Post Graduate Scholarship and another student-athlete named as an alternate. UNLV was the only school in the nation to have two athletes so honored in the same year. These are only two of many such examples of the academic achievements of UNLV student-athletes. With the help and guidance of UNLV’s academic consultants, all athletes at UNLV are distinguishing themselves in the classroom, not only on the playing field.

The city of Las Vegas, Nevada is a thriving metropolis of nearly half-a-million permanent residents nestled in a desert valley near the southernmost tip of the state. Located in the scenic southwestern United States, Las Vegas is within a 30-mile radius of Lake Mead; the massive Hoover Dam and Colorado River recreational area; the snow skiing trails of 12,000 foot Mt. Charleston; and a panorama of red-rock mountains, eroded sandstone landscapes and replicas of old western towns. Also, within easy reach is the Southern California coastal areas, Arizona’s Grand Canyon, California’s Death Valley and Southern Utah's Zion National Park.

First settled in 1855 as a missionary outpost of the Mormon Church, the city has grown into one of the premier entertainment spots in the world. Of course, everyone is familiar with the famed Las Vegas “Strip,” where renowned entertainers come to perform and the glamour and glitter is unsurpassed anywhere. Yet, the “Strip” is by no means the only means of entertainment. In many important ways, Las Vegas is like any other large city that is on the go. There is a rich cultural scene including art galleries, theatres, ballet and numerous musical organizations.

In addition, there are new museums, recreational parks, libraries, churches and hospitals making Las Vegas a city able to satisfy every taste.

"Head Coach Jack Pate and UNLV's 1984 Singles' Champion, Scott Win..."
THE UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA, LAS VEGAS

The University of Nevada, Las Vegas, has grown and developed in its relatively short history into one of the most dynamic urban universities in the Southwest. With some 11,000 students, a vigorous Continuing Education program, and active performing arts complex, the university has become both the educational and cultural hub of southern Nevada.

Academic excellence has been a priority at UNLV since its inception as the Southern Regional University in 1957. When Maude Frazier left campus that year it stood alone, surrounded by desert and fronted by a two-lane county road.

By the mid-1960s the university had become a four-year, degree-granting institution known as Nevada Southern University. Full autonomy with status as a regional university was achieved in 1968, and the following year the Board of Regents gave the campus its new name: the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

UNLV is part of the University of Nevada System, governed by the nine-member Nevada Board of Regents. As part of the University of Nevada System, which is governed by the nine-member Nevada Board of Regents, UNLV is part of the University of Nevada System, which is governed by the nine-member Nevada Board of Regents.

UNLV's campus is nestled on 335 acres of parklike landscaping and modern buildings is located two miles from the Las Vegas Strip, in the heart of a busy commercial and residential area.

The push for academic excellence has intensified in recent months under the direction of UNLV's energetic new president, Dr. Robert C. Maxson. During the first months of his presidency, Maxson's administration a number of substantial gifts have come to UNLV to support academics and to help build the new School of Engineering and Computer Science. Of these, the Margaret Elrod Nevada Scholars Program and the Nevada Kidney and Blood Disease Research Fund are notable for the impetus they give to the university's campaign to attract Nevada's finest high school graduates.

Beam, and the arena is named for longtime UNLV supporters Jerome Mack and B. Parry Thomas.

UNLV is proud of its physical facilities—its $5 million Altos Joint Fine Arts Building and $7 million, pur-sor supported by James R. Dickmeyer, and Thomas and Mack Center, home of the Runnin' Rebels and the site of major professional concerts and sporting events. The business building is named for the parents of donor Thomas T. Beam, and the arena is named for longtime UNLV supporters Jerome Mack and B. Parry Thomas.

UNLV operates on the semester system, with a Mini Term offered between Spring and Fall semesters and two five-week sessions scheduled during the summer. Regular daytime classes are augmented by a strong evening program.

Las Vegas residents by the thousands—some 15,000 annually, in fact—take advantage of the more than 500 credit and non-credit courses offered each year by the Division of Continuing Education. These "classes for people" are designed with a wide range of potential students in mind: teachers, nurses and other professionals who need course work to stay current in their fields; personal interested in developing artistic and handicraft skills; business people who want to gain expertise in new areas or brush up on present abilities; people who want to learn photography, writing, computer programming, virtually anyone who wants to learn.

A MAN AND HIS TOWEL

Everybody wants to know about the Tarkanian trademark — Tark's Towel. The towel dates back to Jerry Tarkanian's Long Beach State days, when an ingenious manager devised it to help Coach’s mouth from getting dry. Actually, there are two towels; the one on top is wet (soaked in nothing more than tap water) and the one on the bottom is dry and is used simply to keep the wet one from sitting on the floor. The towel is wetted and folded (into 16ths, by the way) by a designated student-manager, who has learned the folding technique from a predecessor. The towels are handed to Coach Tarkanian as he enters the court at pre-game. The folder of the towel, most recently, is student-manager Barry Vaccaro, a junior from Pittsburgh, PA. Vaccaro adds that the towels are nothing more than plain, ordinary locker-room towels (but he does go through the stack to find the least raunchy one!).

I've been banking in this State for over thirty years and when I'm out talking to people I tell them what they want personal attention. We offer that at Security Bank and we do it better than any other bank in the State.

Sure banking has changed over the years, some financial institutions feel that computers and automatic teller machines give you everything you need. That's great for them but what about you.

At Security Bank we offer all the technology to better serve you and something more, people who care about you.

If you're just a person with a number and want to be more, visit us today.

UNLV FIGHT SONG

On UNLV Fight
Lifting our voices high;
with a conquering hand of might
We raise our banner to the sky.

On UNLV Fight,
Charging triumphantly;
Fight, UNLV, Fight
For Victory.

"ALMA MATER - UNLV"

Alma Mater, we praise you
For the spirit you have shown
You've given inspiration through the years
And with your knowledge we have grown.

Alma Mater, UNLV
May you continue in glory
Days of old, and days to be
We'll treasure your dignity.

Alma Mater, we'll remember you
When our student days are through
Hard times, good times
They'll be part of UNLV's call.

HAIL TO NEVADA

Hail to Nevada, the place I love the best.
Hail to Nevada, to the glory of the west.
We've got the state with all the personality.
That's why all the other folks are jealous as can be.

Hail to Nevada, her glory reigns supreme.
She is the lady who is always in our dreams.
We'll make you welcome if you'll only be our guest.
Come on by and you'll see why Nevada is the best.

Come on by—You'll see why Nevada is the best.

Hi Mom!

I've found a really great apartment called Wildflower. They're brand new and close to everything, plus they have all the extras I enjoy—swimming pools, spas, tennis courts and more. I live in a studio, but they also have one, two and three bedrooms available, when I have a bigger budget!

The picture of me and the beautiful surroundings shows you how happy I am here.

The sounds of his classroom are not lost on Kevin Guski — even though he has a severe hearing problem.

The 3-year-old Las Vegas is learning to use what little hearing he has so he can understand and talk to his preschool classmates at Clark County Community College.

Guski speaks well with the other children during play. Only his hearing aids give him away to the casual observer.

Kevin is part of SOUND Foundation, which stands for Speaking Out Unlimited Normal Development. The program is sponsored by parents, deaf children and operated by Lois Tarkanian and Linda Hyde, the wives of UNLV basketball and football coaches.

"If you, yes, you have a handicap, but you can overcome it," and that's what Kevin Guski — even though he has a severe hearing problem, he can express spontaneously his own thoughts, speak in connected sentences, offer opinions and not hear it without hearing aids, Hyde explains.

Such a child must begin as early as possible to maximize his hearing potential, Tarkanian says. "A child's success also depends on how much time his family can devote to him."

Kevin was not quite 2 when his family enrolled him in the program. The Guski had learned about Tarkanian when approached by a stranger who noticed Kevin's hearing aids at a restaurant.

"I don't want these children to end up in a subculture," Tarkanian says, glancing at the antics of the children.

"We don't limit a child. Our children are not ashamed of being deaf. We just say, 'We know what you can do is really unlimited — and it really is.'"

Tarkanian says cooperation of parents is essential to a deaf child's success. "I can offer her started but that's all I can do. I strongly believe Hyde and Tarkanian send information home to parents to help them work with their children. Parents always are thinking of applications for what is taught," Tarkanian says.

Tarkanian estimates 98 percent of deaf children have some level of hearing that can be used in developed properly, she says. "Earlier programs have proved successful in Canada and other states in the U.S."

Special care is taken to ensure that children's hearing aids work properly. Continuing technological advances offer hope that as normal a life as possible can be achieved by the deaf, Tarkanian says.

"If you say, 'I love you,' they might hear 'Mmmmmm,'" Tarkanian explains. Eventually, children learn to distinguish individual words and sounds, she adds.

Such a program must begin as early as possible if a child is making progress developing his residual hearing, or if some other method of communication should be pursued, Tarkanian says. A child's success also depends on how much time his family can devote to him.

I strongly believe Hyde and Tarkanian send information home to parents to help them work with their children. Parents always are thinking of applications for what is taught," Tarkanian says.

Costs of the program are $100 a month for tuition and $50 a month for preschool. However, families are charged on the basis of their ability to pay and scholarships are available for the preschool.

"We don't give children additional hearing. We don't do miracles," Tarkanian stresses. "It's not going to be easy for these children. They're not going to hear things, they're going to have humps."

Still, Tarkanian sees far more rises than the reductions in the program. One of her favorite stories concerns Cathy driving past her school one day.

"She said, 'I saw you the other day at school. I'm a teacher, Helen Pederson. She's a great kid to work with.'"

While her speech is a little difficult to understand, Pederson says Cathy gets along well and is popular with classmates.

Cathy's parents, Donia and Jorge, brought her to the U.S. from their native Ecuador so she could receive help. Cathy's brother, Eric, works with her the most because he has the best grasp of English in the family.

Tarkanian also spends time with Cathy, as does a speech therapist for fire school district.

Traditionalists, deaf children have learned to understand the world around them by reading lips and using sign language.

Tarkanian sees lip reading and sign language as secondary skills for deaf children, when they should learn only after mastering as many listening and speaking skills as possible.

"They want for my daughter, they don't want to do anything more," Tarkanian says. "I don't want these children to end up in a subculture," Tarkanian says, glancing at the antics of the children.

"We don't limit a child. Our children are not ashamed of being deaf. We just say, 'We know what you can do is really unlimited — and it really is.'"

At one time, Tim Grgurich was going to toss it. Maybe head coach at a high school where his biggest worry would be teaching 16-year-old kids how to get to their left. Maine? he'd join a friend in business, leaving home at 8, coming home at 5 and spending time with his wife and two daughters.

But he didn't suffer burnout. He was only 34.

Call it a romance gone sour, one that started as a freshman at the University of Pittsburgh and ended there after 11 years of coaching.

If you took a slice out of Grgurich, he might still bleed Pitt blue, but first he bled Rebel red. He has rediscovered his love for basketball at UNLV, where in four years he's turned into what Coach Jerry Tarkanian says is "the best assistant I've ever had.

Which raises an interesting question: Can a blue-collar guy who coached a blue-collar team in a blue-collar town find happiness as an assistant in a city where tinsel outweighs grit, 10-1?

"I just wanted to be in a good basketball situation where I know the coaches are treated right, players are treated right and you have an opportunity to win," said Grgurich, sitting in his office on a bright and early Tuesday morning. "A lot of coaches out there are great coaches, but no one knows it because they don't have the resources. They're getting screwed. They can't take care of their players, they can't take care of their coaches, they can't take care of their families. They (the schools) don't care about the game.

"I told people it's better to be an assistant coach in a place that loves basketball than to a place where they don't care because eventually, you'll lose."

Grgurich's ties to Pittsburgh are thick. He's still strong for him to knock the city or the school. He even looks and sounds Pittsburgh.

He has that deep raspy voice with a twang of Eastern European. And his feathered dark-eyed face would fit just right on a label of Iron City beer. Even his name hints of a homely ethnic neighborhood where loyalty is more valued than frills.

UNLV landed Grgurich after he coached Pitt for five years and had a 52-30 marks his last three seasons. He was named Pittsburgh Basketball Writers Coach of the Year in 1975-76, 1977-78 and 1978-79 yet despite the success, the Pitt administration never made a financial commitment to basketball.

He hustled camps and clinics for scholar-

Coach Tim Grgurich ship money. He slept in his car on recruiting trips. And after he bashed his head against the wall one too many times, he resigned.

"I wasn't going to coach," Grgurich said. "I was going to take a high school job. I was the situation I put myself in. Being in a school a long period of time, I wanted to get away from that situation."

He didn't take the job. Sonny Vaccaro, who runs the Dapper Dan High School Basketball Classic in Pittsburgh, is a good friend of Tarkanian and called. Tarkanian met Grgurich while serving as (get this) a technical adviser for the movie "The Fish That Stole Pittsburgh" and hired him.

As a head assistant, Grgurich does a litttle of everything: teaching, scouting, recruiting, planning. He does everything but get credit.

"He's the hardest-working guy I've ever seen in my life," Tarkanian said. "He has zero ego. I like taking head coaches. Ever since I've had my problem with the NCAA, I've taken twow coaches. They tried to get me out of the game, and I had no other interest in life and I know how that hurt me." Tarkanian's problem was with the NCAA, which raised an interesting question: Can a blue-collar guy who coached a blue-collar team in a blue-collar town find happiness as an assistant in a city where tinsel outweighs grit, 10-1? Which raises an interesting question: Can a blue-collar guy who coached a blue-collar team in a blue-collar town find happiness as an assistant in a city where tinsel outweighs grit, 10-1?

Grgurich's energy is legendary. He regularly get up at dawn six work out at the Sporting House before going to the office, where he says he has nearly everyday. When sports writers were flappin g down cab for the two-block ride to Utah's gym in 19-degree weather, Grgurich was getting ready for his morning run.

"He's just as active indoors.

"I've never seen a guy with that much energy," said part-time assistant Bud Vaccaro, who shares Grgurich's office. "I walk in and he's like that when it was 7-0. He can barely sit here for five minutes. He's always in and out, in and out. That's why you never see him.

"But I've been in this game 36 years and I've coached against Jud Heathcote and Lute Olson and many of the great coaches. I've lived with guys like Pete Newell and some of the great teachers. This guy's one of the three or four greatest teachers of the game that I've encountered. He's got a great mind for the game. He's got enormous energy. It has to be second to none.

"He's done an amazing job of putting basics into the game which are the important things."

"He's a helluva teacher." He's able to do that at UNLV, instead of fighting the administration, he has time to teach Paul Bro佐novich how to pivot under the bucket or show the basics to 7-0 Georg Polti so he's not just a slow, plodding Norwegian this year.

Grgurich calls it "expanding yourself." UNLV offers a lot in that respect.

"No, it's the stuff," he said. "My first year Mark (assistant Workenlent) and I got together and in four years we've become very close. Then Tates came the next year, Dave Buse the next year and now Bud and I have been with Tark for four years. When I'm with Bud and Tark every day it's like a clinic because of their basketball knowledge.

"The biggest thing for me in expanding myself is being around people like Bud, Tates, Tark, Dave, Mark. There aren't many folks like that. That's why (Tarka

"Like being back East, every night you'd be with coaches," he continued. "After you get done practicing you go to a high school game and there were eight coaches and then you go get your beer. You can't do that here in Vegas. That's why the most critical thing for me here is the people. Like people like Mark and Bud and young guys like Bill (Lavel), Steve (Bennett) and Ed (Sauly). I can go out every night with Bud, take my notes and talk and Tates was the same way. It's really important if you're going to coach at UNLV that the staff be real good.

"To me that's coaching. Some guys like banquets and speeches. To me it's going on the floor with five kids and have a good time."

Jerry Koloskie, who is now in his second full season with the team, is the busiest person on the sidelines. As hectic as anyone’s season with the 100% Master of Science from Koloskie, Jerry Koloskie, Head Athletic Trainer Peanuts Boyer (back row) Head Athletic Trainer Peanuts Boyer of science from 1980, and one of his assistants will recommend that the athlete be sent for a v axes of the injured area.

Working with Koloskie and Wilson is Assistant Athletic Trainer Peanut Boyer, who is in her second year with the training staff. Boyer earned her Bachelor of Science from the University of Pittsburgh in 1982 and her Master of Science from Nicholls State University in 1980.

"We have a great tradition here (at UNLV)," said Boyer. "We each have our own responsibilities, but any athlete can come in here and talk to any of us (Boyer, Wilson or Koloskie). It’s different from some other situations I’ve been in."

Boyer’s main responsibility is women’s sports, and in particular women’s basketball, "I love that all sports are covered by student-trainers and that they are still just as important," Koloskie said. "We cover all of the sports and I think that is what makes us so unique as student-athletes."

The sports with the highest injury rates are basketball, football, and the sport that requires a lot of impact and stress, such as the so-called “dirty work.” Every day there are injuries, with the highest number of injuries occurring in the fall.

"They are not just the Ones who get hurt but the entire team," said Boyer. "It’s an awesome task - meeting the needs of all the athletes off the field.

"The one thing that I’ve learned in my three years here is that you have to take it one day at a time."

Injuries are prevented through a combination of prevention and treatment. The trainers try to identify areas of weakness and weakness in the body and work on correcting these areas to prevent injuries. They also work with the coaching staff to develop strategies to prevent injuries.

"I’ve got to get off the field," said Boyer. "It’s a job that you have to do, and what treatment was given months or even years ago doesn’t matter. At UNLV, the trainers can get the athlete back as soon as possible."

"The most important thing is to get the athlete back as soon as possible," said Boyer. "It’s a job that you have to do, and what treatment was given months or even years ago doesn’t matter. At UNLV, the trainers can get the athlete back as soon as possible."

The 1984-85 UNLV Lady Rebel Basketball team hopes to go one step further this season. In 1983-84, the Lady Rebels' 24-4 mark was the most successful record in the program's history. In 1983-84, the Lady Rebels were the first-ever PCWA Women's Basketball Champions, advancing to the first round of the NCAA Tournament (another Lady Rebel first). In the 1984-85 season the UNLV Lady Rebels will attempt to conquer another step toward their goal of climbing to the top of the collegiate basketball world.

"We've tasted two years of success," Lady Rebel Co-Head Coach Jim Bobala said. "We finally made it to the NCAA Tournament. Now that we know what it's like to get there, we have to take it one step further.

Last year was indeed a banner season for the Lady Rebels. The team started the year with a string of six consecutive wins, compiled a perfect 4-0 conference record and ended the year with a 24-6 slate. Despite a 28-58 loss in the first round of the NCAA Tournament to California State Long Beach, the 1983-84 campaign was overwhelm­ ingly one of the most prosperous ever for UNLV Women's Basketball.

This year's edition of UNLV Lady Rebel Basketball will differ slightly from the 1983-84 team, but will maintain the "theme" of success. "We will be smaller this year than last," Bobala said. "But we'll offset our lack in height by using more skilled players at all the positions." There will be many other noticeable revisions in the 1984-85 edition of Lady Rebel Basketball. One of the biggest changes will be the quickened pace. "We're going to play an uptempo game this season," Bobala explained. "Our plan is to use speed and quickness. We hope to be quick both offensively and defensively, we'll try to get off and down the court very fast. The different style will help to play should the game be an uptempo pace. Whether it be a half-court or full-court press, we'll keep a fast pace and try to create turnovers."

An up-tempo style of play will mandate more frequent substitutions even the fast-paced offense run out of team depth guarantee another. "We're going to have to play at least eight players consistently," Bobala said.

Once again, the Lady Rebels will be led by All-American candidates Mary Thomas, Thomas, 5-11, junior; Kris Silver, Ontario, Canada, has guided the team for the past two years in the point-guard slot. Last year, she compiled 15.5 points per game, 6.3 rebounds per game and broke the school season assist record with 180 in 1983-84 (breaking Sheila Powell's old record of 176 set in 1976-77). Thomas also earned CoSIDA Academic All-America honors accumulating a 3.94 grade point average. Along with Danny Tarkanian, first team Academic All-America on the Rebel Men's team, they became the first-ever Academic All-Americans in the country.

Donya Monroe, a 6-2 junior, returns and will add leadership to this year's squad. Monroe finished the 1983-84 season as the Lady Rebels top rebounder (65 rebounds per game) and third leading scorer (116 points per game). Also returning are sophomores Angela Christian (6-2) and Charlotte "Neicy" Blair (5-8). Christian saw action last season as the back-up power forward and tailed 71 points and 5.2 rebounds per game. Blair was a substitute point guard and compiled 3.8 points and 1.2 rebounds per game.

Adding depth to this year's squad are junior Jackie Tefft (6-4) and Kathy LaVern (6-1). Tefft saw limited action last season at the center position, but will be used even more extensively this season. LaVern was a backup forward and tailed 4.1 points and 2.7 rebounds per game.

The Lady Rebels have compensated for the loss of five better players with a quality recruiting class. Joining the squad will be two of the finest prep players in the country, Karen Hall, a 5-10 point guard, and Zina Haris, a 5-6 guard/forward. Hall came from Mt. Anthony HS in Pittsfield where she accumulated 1,804 points and 575 steals and was a three-year starter. She was selected to the "Fabulous Five" by the Pittsburgh Post Gazette and was heavily recruited by women's basketball programs across the country.

Also new to the Lady Rebel attack force will be Shauna Crawford and Lisa Rhymer. Crawford (6-0) is a transfer from Portland, Oregon, and was an honorable mention All-American in 1983-84. Rhymer (5-9) is a native of the Virgin Islands, is a basketball player, and Rhymer was a first team Academic All-American in 1983-84.

Also new to the Lady Rebel basketball squad is Sheila Strike-Bolla. Strike-Bolla and Jim Bobala are rapidly transforming the Lady Rebels into one of the nation's top basketball teams, as evidenced by UNLV's first appearance in the NCAA playoffs in 1983-84.

Co-Head Coach Sheila Strike-Bolla and Jim Bobala are rapidly transforming the Lady Rebels into one of the nation's top basketball teams, as evidenced by UNLV's first appearance in the NCAA playoffs in 1983-84.

Big-Time Sports, KDWN and UNLV will combine to give listeners all of the action for both UNLV football and basketball. Producing Rebel games for Big-Time Sports is its president and founder Len Howard, who has formed his company exclusively for Rebel sports — and Rebel athletics will be a full-time endeavor for Howard, who is well known to Rebel fans as the “Voice of Rebel Basketball.” Howard’s company — Big-Time Sports Productions — was in fact named by former UNLV basketball star Sidney Green. Joining Howard in the broadcast booth for the Runnin’ Rebels as color commentator will be his associate Larry Dubéof.

In the broadcast booth for Rebel football returns the very popular team of Randy Rosenbloom and Al Roberts. The association of KDWN-Radio with UNLV athletics will provide the Rebels with a 50 thousand watt clear channel, providing exposure for UNLV throughout Nevada, California, and as far east as Phoenix, adding millions of listeners to the Rebel game coverage extending the Rebels from their already popular local profile, into the national picture, with coverage all over the west.

Helping Hand

As a dynamic urban university, the University of Nevada, Las Vegas recognizes that today's students not only attend classes, but they also juggle careers, families and outside activities.

While many enter college right out of high school, others are returning after several years in the workforce. This creates a need for specialized advising for a diverse group of students, and UNLV delivers it.

Jim Kitchen, director of the Academic Advising and Resources Center, helps students decide which courses to take and which fields to consider as major study areas. He specializes in assisting students make the transition to university-level work. "We are dealing with students who are undecided about their majors. They may be exceptionally bright, but they are totally undecided about what they want to go into. So we advise them on the proper sequence of courses to take that will lead toward a major and, at the same time, fulfill general core requirements.

In addition to serving as a resource to current UNLV students, Jim and his staff operate the Early Studies Program, which allows talented high school students to take beginning-level classes on campus. "We're doing everything we can to attract academically talented students to UNLV. Through the Early Studies Program we give these students a chance to get a bird's eye view of what UNLV is all about. Our goal is to make their transition from high school to college as smooth as possible."

Jim knows the counseling and study aids available at the center can make the difference between success and failure for students in their first year or two. "A lot of students coming into the university are scared, but when they see there are people who will help guide and nurture them, it's not nearly as intimidating," he says.

"I make students feel welcome at the university. My policy is, when students come to me or to any of our staff for help, they will leave completely satisfied that they have been given the proper advice and guidance in their academic career."
