THE OTHER SIDE OF LAS VEGAS -- COLLEGE ATHLETICS

By ROBB JOHNSON
President, Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce

One of the positive ways the image of Las Vegas is being changed locally and throughout the nation is the emphasis placed on its excellent school system from kindergarten through Nevada Southern University. Southern Nevada, like many communities throughout the United States, is fast coming to realize that the development of a successful intercollegiate athletic program as an important part of the total educational program, is providing a sound national reputation which is contributing directly to the physical and academic growth of the school—and to the area.

The benefits of this concentration on education, especially at the college level, can be turned directly into the economic bloodstream of the local community in dollars and cents since a growing university in years of college training to be entices students from other states and areas to come to Las Vegas. There revenue amounting to many millions of dollars, on a continuing and predictable basis. The Census Bureau recently estimated that the earnings during the working years or normal lifetime for people with four years of college training to be $268,000, or worth about $103,000 more than a high school diploma.

Community pride, always a prime objective of the Las Vegas Chamber of Commerce, reflected in a sound intercollegiate athletic program, not only stimulates local students to attend school at home, but also entices students from other states and areas to come to Las Vegas. There is no doubt that NSU will continue to expand on its own academic merits, a successful program of athletics as evidenced by the Rebel basketball team (an estimated 45,000 persons saw NSU at home last year), however, puts the frosting on the cake.

Nevada Southern University — Growing with Southern Nevada

With an anticipated ground breaking in January, the next phase of Nevada Southern University’s ambitious campus building program will start with construction of a six-floor dormitory to house about 300 students and a dining facility, both to be ready by September of 1966. Now officially called Nevada Southern University, the growth of the Las Vegas campus of the University of Nevada from the idea stage in the late 1940’s to a blossoming institution of higher learning in a relatively few short years, is a reflection of the forward looking spirit of the Southern Nevada community. The latest addition, a multi-story Social Science Building, opened in September of this year. Also under construction is a Radiological Health Laboratory addition.

Maude Frazier Hall was the first building erected on the present 163-acre Maryland Parkway campus in June of 1957. Initial classes were held as early as 1951 at Las Vegas High School and the Board of Regents officially authorized the Southern Regional Division four years later. The curriculum was expanded gradually with the school graduating its first class in 1964; graduate-level courses are also available.

Grant Hall, the second building authorized by the Nevada legislature, was first opened in the summer of 1959 and was named for Board of Regents Chairman Archie Grant of Las Vegas. Miss Frazier, until the time of her death, was a pioneer educator and served as superintendent of public schools in Las Vegas for a number of years and many terms as an Assemblywoman.

In rapid succession, came the health and physical educational building which was opened in the spring of 1961 and the science-technology building which was opened for classes in the fall of the same year featuring the most modern equipment for instruction in science and mathematics. Another recent addition was one of the most modern and well stocked libraries in the state which was first used in the spring of 1962.

HOLIDAY CLASSIC CHATTER

Gasper Cardinale and Gene Burkauskas of St. Joseph's must think they're midgets as they are the only players on the Don roster listed under 6-0. Cardinale, a 5-10 guard, is one of the team's best outside shooters, this is his fourth year of varsity competition. . . . NSU's Sy Stepp will attempt to add to his all-time Holiday Classic point total of 88 racked up in three previous appearances . . . The Rebels have future engagements with two tourney clubs - St. Joseph's (at Albuquerque Jan. 28) and Cal Western (at San Diego Jan. 7) . . . A real future "comer" according to Cal Western coach Bob Klopvenburg is 6-8 Dennis Grey, who helped pace the Westerner Frosh to an 11-4 mark last season . . . Nevada Southern University, the defending Classic champ, will have to fight off the "no repeat" jinx which has plagued titlists since 1961 when Orange State won it. The following year Occidental captured the title and in '63 Cal Western finished on top of the heap . . . Portland's biggest problem this season is to find some helping hands for 6-4 Ed Maerz, coach Al Neggratti's sole returning letterman; best bets are Shelby Dirks and Jim Benjamin . . . For the second straight year, the Rebs of NSU are making the Convention Center their official home base of operations with 12 games scheduled; last season Southern won 15 of 16 at home and was 9-1 on this floor losing only to Montana State, 89-71.
