TONIGHT'S GAME

UNLV

-VS-

CAL STATE, LA

FOSTER ANDERSEN
CSLA Coach

Tonight will be the third "Season Opener" for UNLV. The Rebels, 0 - 2, opened their season two weeks ago by losing to Western Illinois, 35 - 28, and then lost to Boise State, 36 - 16, in Boise's opener last weekend in Boise.

Cal State, Los Angeles, will open the season tonight with this game with the Rebels. Last year the Diablos were 2 - 8 under their first-year head coach Foster Andersen and things are looking up in the Diablo camp.

CSLA should come out passing as they have an excellent quarterback in Jimmy Sander, a former junior college All-America at Harbor College in 1969.

UNLV is hoping to re-group after two opening losses to strong football teams. Against both teams the Rebels got behind early, 21 - 0 to WIU and 30 - 0 to BSC, and were forced to play catch up ball. The Rebels have been out-scored 30 - 0 in first quarter action this year, but a most positive sign is that they never give up and almost pulled it out against Western Illinois.

The Rebels ran up 500 yards in total offense against Boise (who had 445) displaying a team that can move the ball as UNLV is averaging 430 total yards a game this year.

Tonight is Rebel Ed Castro's 21st birthday. A junior, he wears Number 78.

Against Western Illinois junior quarterback Sonny Brasile was player - of - the - week while senior linebacker Mike Lee received the honor against Boise State. UNLV has had some 12 injuries thus far, but a determined and confident team should be on the Astro-Turf tonight . . .

The Best Of Trivia

BY TERRY SHONKWILER

Publicity Director — Showboat Hotel

Ever wonder how the game of football evolved? It certainly has come a long way in the 103 years that it has been played in American colleges.

As a matter of fact it wasn't until the 20th century that the game had any uniform rules. In the latter part of the 18th century, American college students began to play their version of English "football." The sport ranked right along side bar-room brawling and wrestling as a form of recreation.

Due to this lack of rules intercollegiate competition developed slowly, until 1869 when Rutgers faced off against Princeton in what is now considered the first real college football game. Rutgers won that only game of the year and the Associated Press and United Press International voted them number one and of course it was the only year Rutgers ever had bumper stickers saying "Rutgers #1."

The first football conference was the American Intercollegiate Football Association, formed in 1876. The schools involved were Rutgers ("We're number one"), Princeton, Columbia, Yale and Harvard. A game then lasted 90 minutes and teams were composed of 15 players. It wasn't until 1880 that Walter Camp changed the number of players to 11, thus making it easier for every play-by-play announcer in the country to remember players names.

At that time the game was one of brute strength until the turn of the century. Blocking and tackling were crude and very rough. The flying wedge formation did nothing to preserve arms or legs and naturally there were no rules against grabbing the face mask. In fact in 1905 eighteen players were killed and 159 seriously injured during the season. Therefore it is easy to see why football has the great mass appeal it enjoys today.

Now some more terrific trivia.

1. Before the legendary Duke, John Wayne became a movie star he was a star in sports. Which sport and where?
2. Joe Palooka was the greatest heavyweight of all times. Who portrayed Palooka in the movies?
3. In 1949 Jimmy Stewart starred as a baseball pitcher who lost a leg, but came back to pitch again. What was the name of the flick?
4. In the Broadway play, "Damn Yankees," what position did Shoeless Joe play for the Washington Senators?
5. What football team holds the record for most number of consecutive victories?
6. What National League baseball team holds the record for most number of pennants won?
7. The United States has invented two team sports now played internationally. What are they?
8. UCLA has dominated college basketball recently. Which team, however, had the first seven foot player in college history?
9. Bud Palmer now stars behind a mike for ABC television. Where did he gain fame originally?
10. Who is the first UNLV football player to make it on a NFL team?

A LOT OF LITTLE CARS HAVE TWO DOORS. THIS ONE HAS TWO ROOFS.

Vega is a little more car than a lot of little cars.

The roof, for instance, is constructed of not one but two separate steel panels, one under the other, to add strength and quiet to the car.

And although, like we said, a lot of little cars have two doors — very few of them have steel guard beams built into them, like the Vega doors do.

Vega gives you more engine than most little cars: A 140-cubic-inch overhead cam four that can handle turnpike speeds quite comfortably without a lot of straining.

And where some little cars let you feel every little bump, Vega has big coil springs at all four wheels to help take the harshness out of the ride.

The point of this ad is quite simple. We're just telling you that our Vega, although not a big car, is certainly a lot of car.

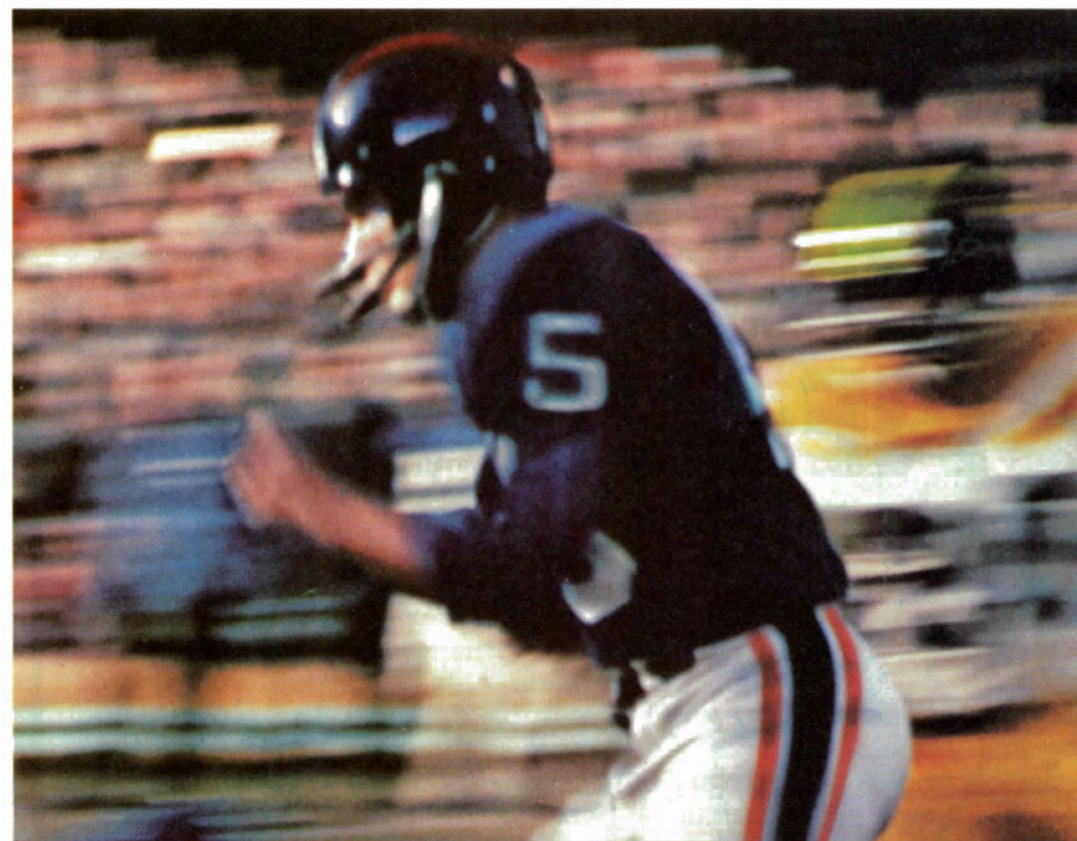

From road to roofs.

UNLV Scene

BY MARK HUGHES, UNLV INFORMATION DIRECTOR

More than 6,000 students are attending classes this fall at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, according to the latest figures just released on the campus.

This means that enrollment at UNLV has jumped another six per cent over last year at this time -- roughly twice the national growth average at universities around the country.

But big enrollment leaps are nothing new for UNLV. Fifteen years ago, when the first class of 300 students started courses on a pretty barren Maryland Parkway site, no one dreamed that the tiny branch campus would blossom so soon into a major state university. But it happened anyway.

It's been the same story for about everything at UNLV -- academic programs, building facilities . . . and football.

Sitting in the 15,000-seat Astro-turfed Las Vegas Stadium, it's hard to conceive that four years ago the Rebels fielded their first team at Cashman Field. It was a determined crew that year that strove for eight consecutive victories on the gridiron. And, as the schedules got tougher, the Rebels continued to play a fighting brand of winning football.

Not many will venture a guess at what the future will bring to UNLV in the classrooms or on the playing fields. But if past achievements are any indication, there is greatness in the wind for sure.

TRIVIA QUIZ ANSWERS . . .

1. Before movies the Duke was mowing down bad guys on the gridiron at USC.
2. The great undefeated heavyweight of comics and several movies was Joe Kirkwood, Jr.
3. Jimmy Stewart as Monte Stratton lost his leg in a hunting accident but came back to pitch again in the "Stratton Story."
4. The Devil made him do it . . . Shoeless Joe roamed centerfield for one season then presumably moved to Texas.
5. The great Oklahoma Sooners coached by Chris Shenkle's pal Bud Wilkinson.
6. The Cardinals of St. Louis with 11 league flags flying over Busch Stadium.
7. No it wasn't monopoly or beer chugging, but Basketball and Volleyball.
8. Oklahoma State University under Hank Iba introduced the first seven footer and OSU won two NCAA titles in a row in 1947-48.
9. Bud Palmer, now also an assistant to the Mayor of New York, first gained prominence on the hardwood of Madison Square Garden with the New York Knickerbockers.
10. Ken Mitchell became the first ever UNLV gridder to make an NFL team this year when he just recently signed his contract with the Atlanta Falcons. A Linebacker, he signed as a free agent and is currently on the Taxi squad of the Falcons.

An All-American . . . On and Off Football Field

by RUBE SAMUELSEN, Mr. Rose Bowl and Past President, Football Writers Association of America

In 1924, Walter Camp named him on his All-America team. In 1943, UCLA, under his coaching, made their first appearance in the Rose Bowl. In 1965, after courageously undergoing extremely delicate brain surgery for Parkinson's Disease, he was named "Patient of the Year." In 1969, he was named to football's Hall of Fame.

Such a man is Babe Horrell.

Sports has produced many notable headliners, yet a select few rate a salute as champion among champions . . . and they stand tall. Horrell belongs.

Moved to Pasadena

Now 70, Horrell was born in Jackson, Mo. When three, his family moved to Pasadena, a city which has figured prominently in his life. He was the youngest of ten children—hence the nickname Babe. Horrell Field, then Pasadena High School's practice area was named after him and his four football-playing brothers Bill, Cam, Steve and John.

As a prep, Horrell was an All Southern California football choice at center besides lettering in basketball, track (shotput, discus, 440 and relay), swimming and tennis. Yes, he also played center in basketball. What else?

At California, Horrell captained the frosh and also the varsity as a senior. Four memorable firsts were involved. The Bears' "Wonder Team," after going undefeated again in Babe's sophomore year, declined a third straight bid to play in Pasadena's famed New Year's Day game. So it was that Horrell did not play in the Rose Bowl. And yet he did. After that historic stadium was built, Babe played in its very first game, when California thumped USC in October of 1922. Along with playing their home schedule in the Rose Bowl that fall, the Trojans, after the Bears bowed out, met Penn State on the following New Year's Day in the inaugural holiday fray.

As a junior in 1923, when the Berkeleyites' new stadium was opened with California beating Stanford, 9-0, Horrell scored eight of the winning points. Six resulted from the stadium's very first touchdown after Babe blocked Ernie Nevers' punt and fell on the ball in the end zone. Tackling Scotchy Campbell behind the goal line for a safety netted the other two points.

Couldn't Be By-Passed

Walter Camp came west to scout personally the brilliant Californian in the Bears-Stanford traditional in 1924. Even though he had decided upon Army's Ed Garbisch as his first team's center, convinced by what he saw, the renowned originator of post season top honor elevens concluded Babe could not be by-passed. Accordingly, he was placed at guard. Shortly after, he was a member of the first Shrine game's West squad.

That was Babe Horrell, football player.

For some years Horrell was a part-time and then full assistant coach under Bill Spaulding at UCLA. When Spaulding retired, Babe became the Bruins' head coach in 1939, acceding to the players' urging and unanimous endorsement. The school's first unbeaten season ensued.

Continuing his collection of firsts, he led UCLA to its initial victory in history over USC in 1942. The New Year's Day intersectional of 1943, against Georgia, followed. The Bulldogs won, 9-0.

That was Babe Horrell, football coach.

Because of widespread business interests, Horrell left coaching in 1944. Then a physical handicap, which was to reshape his entire life, began to make inroads. It was Parkinson's Disease.

Nonetheless, Horrell continued active pursuit of his enterprises. Embraced was major ownership in a 493-acre orange grove, a 150-acre apple orchard, three packing houses which processed 3,000,000 boxes last year, a large produce market and two golf courses, Singing Hills and Alondra Park, all in California.

That is Babe Horrell, business man.

Horrell resides with his delightful wife, Winnie, in a Beverly Hills hill-top home. Their two daughters, Mrs. J. Dudley Rookus and Mrs. Warren D. Cutting and eleven grandchildren live relatively near while their one son, Steve, manages Singing Hills, located near San Diego. This close-knit group is already sharing in Babe's holdings.

That is Babe Horrell, family man.

Being a Parkinsonian, the disease so ravaged Horrell that he had to abandon full direction of his business interests in 1958. Such was the tremor in his arms that he couldn't shave, cut his meat or don his clothes in less than an hour.

The only way out was delicate surgery. Even then, the chances of survival were but 50-50. It was performed under local anesthesia. This, through necessity, enabled Babe to voice his reactions when nervousness was at its height.

BABE HORRELL
All-America in 1924

Delicate Surgery

Above his left eye at the top of his skull a candula was inserted six inches to the pallidus region at the brain's base there to deposit a pure alcohol solution. The less demanding freeze method, now used, was discovered later. Control of his right arm was the objective. The operation took two hours. The following year, Horrell underwent similar surgery from the right side.

Inspiring success ensued. He soon was able to shave, cut his steak and dress in ten minutes. Now, Babe frequently plays three sets of tennis doubles at one outing. He also drives his car 20,000 miles a year. In total respect, Horrell, "For his example of hope and courage to his fellowmen," was named Patient of the Year in 1965 by the United Parkinson Foundation.

That is Edwin Chillion Horrell, the man and the Babe, an All-American both off and on the field.

All-America Consession Team

By JOHN MOSER
Las Vegas Review - Journal

Football season! Yikes! More All-American teams than you can shake a "panel of experts" at.

We have the Associated Press All America, the United Press International All America, the Newspaper Enterprises All America, the Sporting News All America, the Kodak All America, the Consensus All America and even, (gasp choke), the Playboy All America, to mention a few.

But, alas, all these teams list just football players. How inconsiderate to the people who really deserve credit. The people who make watching football bearable to the fan in the stands. The people who sell hot dogs and hamburgers!

The Review Journal's John Moser is responsible (and legally at fault, if a lawsuit should follow) for the first annual "Associated Pressing United International Consensus Enterprise All America Snack Bar and Vending Team for 1972."

Here are some of the stars on this year's squad:

HARRY HERNYA — One of the most reliable endurance vendors on West Coast, Hernya climbed 96 rows at Los Angeles Coliseum during Rams - 49ers game only to discover irate fan was calling Brodie a hot dog and didn't want anything to eat, Nov. 20, 1964.

R. P. "LUNGS" YELLINSHOUT — Holds Atlantic Coast Conference record for sale across largest number of rows, 47. Also noted for causing confusion when visiting team was calling audibles at line of scrimmage and tight end claimed he didn't know what to do on "Peanuts, 20 cents!"

GRIMELDA "BUNS" McGERK — Switched to cotton candy after three successful seasons at hamburgers. Grimelda raised eyebrows when she connected on four of four tosses of empty relish jars into same container, Oct. 13, 1969.

SUDS BURPENBELCHER — Long known for his acumen in beer sales, Suds lost a year of eligibility when it was discovered he hired a robot at slave wages during a conference game to do his job while he craftily hid under the stands sampling the product.

BOB SNATCHEM — Every team needs a specialty player, and we have selected Snatchem, who situated himself cleverly in the same row as the heavy hot dog eaters, stealing dogs before they get passed to their rightful owners. Hungry fan, engrossed in game, keeps ordering and paying for more hot dogs to delight of concessions manager.

JIP SHORTCHANGE — Successfully substituted nickels for quarters in give-back change on 68 occasions during exciting fourth-quarter touchdown drive, Sept. 6, 1954.

BURLY BEEFBLASTER — Noted for his ability to intimidate the non-committal fan, the 6-8, 325-pound Burly once pawned off 37 hamburgers on a skinny guy who wasn't particularly hungry.

A. JILES TUMBLEFARTHER — Claimant to the modern regular-season record of falling down 34 steps with a full tray of Cokes and never spilling a drop, Nov. 13, 1971.

BYRON "FREEFALL" BOOTS — Winner of the Associated Concession Retailer's "Most Enthusiastic Salesman of the Year" award when he attempted to lure prospective buyers by parachuting into the stadium with a packet of goodies. Boots met disaster when his chute failed to open. He was gathered up from Aisles 13, 28, 48 and 63 to accept the award.
