1984-85 UNLV LADY REBEL OUTLOOK ONE STEP FURTHER

The 1984-85 UNLV Lady Rebel Basketball team hopes to go one step further this season. In 1982-83, the Lady Rebels' 24-4 mark was the most successful record in the program's history. In 1983-84, the Lady Rebels became the first-ever PCAA Women's Basketball Champions, advancing to the first round of the NCAA Tournament (another Lady Rebel first). In this 1984-85 season the UNLV Lady Rebels will attempt to conquer another step toward their goal of climbing to the top of the collegiate basketball world.

"We've tasted two years of success," Lady Rebel Co-Head Coach Jim Bolla said. "We finally made it to the NCAA Tournament. Now that we know what it takes to get there, we have to take it one step further."

Last year was indeed a banner season for the Lady Rebels. The team started the year with a string of six consecutive wins, compiled a perfect 4-0 conference record and ended the year with a 24-7 slate. Despite a 78-58 loss in the first round of the NCAA Tournament to California State Long Beach, the 1983-84 campaign was overwhelmingly one of the most prosperous ever for UNLV Women's Basketball.

This year's edition of UNLV Lady Rebel Basketball will differ slightly from the 1983-84 team, but will maintain the "theme" of success. "We will be smaller this year than last year," Bolla said. "But we'll offset our lack in height by using more skilled players at all the positions."

There will be many other noticeable revisions in the 1984-85 edition of Lady Rebel Basketball. One of the biggest changes will be the quickened pace.

"We are going to play an up-tempo game this season," Bolla explained. "Our plan is to use speed and quickness. We hope to be quick both offensively and defensively, we'll try to get up and down the court very fast. The different style we hope to play should dictate an up-tempo pace. Whether it be a half-court or full-court press, we'll keep a fast pace and try to create turnovers."

An up-tempo style of play will mandate more frequent substitutions — even the fastest locomotives run out of steam some time or another. "We're going to have to play at least eight players consistently," Bolla said.

Once again, the Lady Rebels will be led by All-America candidate Misty Thomas. Thomas, 5-11, Junior, out of Windsor, Ontario, Canada, has guided the team for the past two years in the point guard slot. Last year, she compiled 15.5 points per game, 6.3 rebounds per game and broke the school season assist record with 180 in 1983-84 (breaking Sheila Powell's old record of 174 set in 1976-77). Thomas also earned CoSIDA Academic All-America honors accumulating a 3.94 grade point average. Along with Danny Tarkanian, first team Academic All-America on the Rebel Men's team, they became the first-ever Academic All-America tandem in the country.

"The key to the team this year will be Misty," Bolla stated firmly. "She is so versatile that she can play anywhere. In size, she is actually not a point guard, but she handles the ball so well that we have to utilize her there."

Thomas spent this summer developing her talents through international competition at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympic Games, as a member of the Canadian Olympic team.

Donya Monroe, a 6-2 junior, returns and will add leadership to this year's squad. Monroe finished the 1983-84 season as the Lady Rebels top rebounder (8.5 rebounds per game) and third leading scorer (11.8 points per game). Also returning are sophomores Angela Christian (6-2) and Charlotte "Neicy" Blair (5-9). Christian saw action last season as the back-up power forward and tallied 7.1 points and 5.2 rebounds per game. Blair was a substitute point guard and compiled 3.9 points and 1.2 rebounds per game.

Adding depth to this year's squad are juniors Jackie Tefft (6-4) and Kathy LaVern (6-1). Tefft saw limited action last season at the center position, but will be used more extensively this season. Lavern was a back-up forward and tallied 4.1 points and 2.7 rebounds per game.

The Lady Rebels have compensated for the loss of six letter winners with a quality recruiting class. Joining the squad will be two of the finest preppers in the country, Karen Hall, 5-4 point guard, and Zina Harris, 5-8 guard/forward. Hall hails from Mt. Alvernia High School in Pittsburgh where she accumulated 1,824 points and 575 steals and was a four year starter. She was selected to the "Fabulous Five" by the Pittsburgh Post Gazette and was heavily recruited by women's basketball powers North Carolina, Missouri and two-time defending national champions USC. Harris, from Gallatin High School in Gallatin, Tennessee, was a Parade All-America and an All-State selection. Over her four year career at Gallatin, she broke every school record (except in free throw percentage) and averaged 18.5 points per game.

Also new to the Lady Rebel attack force will be Shauna Crawley and Lisa Rhymer. Crawley (6-0), a registered nurse from Montreal, Quebec, Canada, will enter UNLV as a sophomore and will see action at the forward slot. Rhymer (5-8), a native of the Virgin Islands, is what Bolla labels "a raw talent with much potential."

Walk-ons Kris Stiver (5-10, forward/guard) and Sandra McPherson (5-7 guard), both from Las Vegas, will provide the necessary bench strength this season.

One factor that is missing from 1984-85 Lady Rebel roster — seniors — is one that most teams consider essential. The Lady Rebels, however, do not consider the absence of senior players a crucial factor — leadership capabilities are found in every class.

"Both Misty (Thomas) and Donya (Monroe) have shown leadership even as a freshman," Bolla said. "We're basically a young team, but we're counting on other players like Neicy (Blair) and Angela (Christian) assuming some leadership duties."

"We haven't had the luxury of having seniors, losing them and re-building the team as of yet," Bolla continued. "We're still young and not an established team. We're still building and will be building even next year."

The Lady Rebels may not be as established as perennial dynasties, but they share one thing in common with the elite of women's collegiate basketball — talent. "We recruit athletes, not just shooters and rebounders," Bolla said. "The team will never be complacent — they want to get better every year. I think the players are starting to get a hunger in them."

The Lady Rebels realize that in order to be considered "Top-20" caliber, they must face Top-20 competition. This year, as in years past, will be a stiffer challenge. Powerhouses such as Texas, Louisiana Tech, Penn State, Alabama and Ohio State are just a few of the teams the Lady Rebels will face in 1984-85. In addition to the strong competition, the Lady Rebels will make eight road trips this season compared to the regular three or four in years past.

Last season the Lady Rebels became a charter-member of the newly formed PCAA Women's Basketball Conference. Acquiring membership with a conference, according to Bolla, will provide several advantages:

"Being in a conference gives you more credibility," Bolla said. "You also have the backing of the conference office. Being independent you don't develop rivalries as you do when you're in a conference. Being an independent is like being an orphan."

A new ruling that will quicken the tempo of women's basketball games is the back court regulation. "The half court rule will be very important for us," Bolla said. "Once the ball gets in play it will cut the court in half. This will really be significant because we won't have to worry about spreading the press out as much."

For the 1984-85 Lady Rebels, achievements such as consecutive conference title and Top-20 ranking would be great. For now, the Lady Rebels hope simply to go one step further.

The Lady Rebel Basketball program has flourished under Co-Head Coach Sheila Strike-Bolla. Within the past four years the team has amassed an excellent 73-39 record, including 24 wins each of the past two seasons. Last year, the Lady Rebels captured the PCAA conference title and received a first ever bid to the NCAA National Tournament.

Yet, through all the accomplishments the Lady Rebels have procured in the past four years, Strike-Bolla remains modest.

"I think we have now laid the groundwork in terms of a quality women's basketball program," Strike-Bolla said. "Our goal now will be to attract quality people year in and year out."

Quality. It is a goal that Strike-Bolla has strived for as an athlete, a student and a coach. Her emphasis on quality was first evident when she embarked in the world of basketball in her native city of Vancouver, British Columbia.

"I come from an academically oriented family," Strike-Bolla said. "My mother is a high school principal and my sister was class valedictorian and an honor student through college. Sports was a way for me to avoid challenging her and still seek advancement."

Strike-Bolla however, excelled enough academically to graduate early in order to play for Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, British Columbia. Her 6-2 slender frame and gifted athletic ability soon made her one of Canada's most prominent women's basketball players.

Although Strike-Bolla was an outstanding prepster, she did not receive any formal basketball training until 1972 when she earned a spot on Canada's Olympic squad. Although most athletes consider making their country's national team the culmination of an athletic career, Strike-Bolla states that it was just a matter of being in the right place at the right time.

"When I first made the Olympic team," Strike-Bolla said, "it was not a long sought-out goal. A friend got me a try-out and they just happened to need a center at the time."

As a member of Canada's national women's basketball team for four years, Strike-Bolla had the opportunity to travel to all points on the globe for international competition. Her team competed in the Pan American Games, held in Mexico City in 1974, the World Student Games, held in Moscow in 1973, and was one of the first international teams to travel to China when they opened their doors in 1972. All in all, Strike-Bolla has visited 21 countries through international basketball competition.

"I don't remember most of the scores or even some of the places we traveled to," Strike-Bolla said. "But I'll always remember things like coming out of the arena in China and seeing 10,000 bicycles, seeing the marching military formations in Russia and seeing a baby growing up in a cardboard box on the streets of Bogota, Columbia. It was those kinds of cultural experiences that I'll remember the most from international competition."

The highlight of Strike-Bolla's playing days occurred in 1976 when she once again represented Canada in the Montreal Olympics. "Making the squad in 1976 was a major goal," she said. "Competing in the Olympic games in my home country was just the epitome of what every amateur athlete strives for. . . it was just spectacular."

After Strike-Bolla received her BA in Geography from Laurentian University and her teaching certificate from Simon Fraser University in 1977, she began her extensive coaching career. Her first coaching stint was coaching the junior varsity team at her alma mater Simon Fraser in 1976-77. She then spent one year at the high school level as the head coach of North Delta Senior High School Girls Basketball team.

In 1978 Strike-Bolla accepted an assistant coaching position at the University of Oregon, where she stayed for two seasons. She served as the team's recruiter and landed several Canadian as well as American stars.

When the head coaching position opened at UNLV in 1980, Strike-Bolla applied with no serious intention of being considered. To her surprise, she was not only considered, but was offered the position. "Again, becoming a head coach was not really one of my grand goals, it was just something that I fell into," she stated. "However, I'm very glad I made the move to UNLV."

This will be the second season that she will be sharing the head coaching duties with her husband, Jim Bolla. Together they have compiled a 24-7 record for one season.

Strike-Bolla, a native of Vancouver, British Columbia, received her MS degree in Physical Education, with an emphasis on Sports Sociology, from Oregon in 1983. She is currently pursuing Post-Masters studies in Educational Administration at UNLV.

Strike-Bolla also has a wealth of camp and clinic experience and is the Co-Director of the UNLV Girls Basketball Camp. When Strike-Bolla can find spare time from her active schedule, she enjoys reading and sewing.

For Co-Head Coach Jim Bolla, achieving goals is not a new strategic coaching scheme, it is more a way of life.

As a prepster, Bolla did not pick up a basketball until the age of 15, however, he developed into one of the most highly sought after players in the state.

As a collegiate player, Bolla and his freshmen teammates vowed to take their team to a tournament their senior year. He went to the NCAA's as a junior.

The achievements continue to grow for Bolla who is entering his fourth season with the Lady Rebels. Last year, Bolla's first season assuming the duties of co-head coach, he helped compile a 24-7 record and a first ever PCAA title. He and his wife, Co-Head Coach Sheila Strike-Bolla were awarded 1984 PCAA Co-Head Coach of the Year distinction for their achievements.

Bolla entered the world of basketball at Canavin High School in Pittsburgh. As a 6-0 freshman, he had about as much interest in basketball as he did in American diplomatic policies until his homeroom teacher, who doubled as the basketball coach, asked him to try out. "I never played basketball before ninth grade," Bolla said. "I was getting beat 21-0 in one-on-one."

After a year's experience and a summer growth spurt which added four inches to his frame, Bolla became a starter. Canavin amassed a perfect 24-0 record, complete with a Pennsylvania State Championship crown. Bolla's senior year he was named All-State, All America and played in the prestigious Dapper Dan Classic in Pittsburgh.

Bolla was highly recruited by several top notch schools including Maryland, Fordham and George Washington. He elected to stay closer to home and chose the University of Pittsburgh.

"I didn't want to go to a program that was already great," Bolla explained. "I wanted to go to a school where I could make an impact."

When Bolla came to Pitt in 1970 several other local Pittsburgh stars joined him. "They had a press conference when we signed with Pitt," he said. "We all made the commitment that we would take Pitt to a tournament when we were seniors."

Bolla saw much playing time as a frosh and started as a sophomore. Through hard work and dedication Bolla's goals were being fulfilled on almost a daily basis; that is, until December 23, 1971. While chasing a loose ball, he dislocated and broke his elbow while playing against South Carolina. The injury sidelined him for a season and took three years to fully heal. "There really was not that much sports medicine or physical therapy then, so I had to rehabilitate it on my own."

As a player, Bolla believed in two things, hard work and aggressiveness. He has broken his nose five times and has been taped "from head to toe" at one time or another.

"We never really had any conditioning or weight lifting programs," Bolla said. "The way we improved was by playing basketball all year round. We used to go into the Pitt Field House in the summer at 6:00 p.m. and lock the doors and play for two or three hours."

Bolla and his teammates fulfilled their promise in 1974 when they tallied 22 straight wins and received a bid to the NCAA Tournament. His team advanced to the final eight, the furthest any Pitt team has ever advanced in NCAA competition only to be knocked out by North Carolina State.

He was named co-captain his senior year and helped guide his team to the NIT Championship tournament.

After graduation, Bolla stayed with the Pitt Basketball program as a volunteer assistant under then Pitt Head Coach and present Runnin' Rebel Assistant Coach Tim Grgurich. He became a graduate assistant for the Panthers in 1977.

Bolla's indoctrination in the world of women's basketball came in 1979 when he was appointed Pitt's assistant women's basketball coach. While coaching the Lady Panthers, Bolla concentrated mainly on defense and rebounding. The Lady Panthers finished third in the nation in rebounding in 1980.

Bolla temporarily dropped out of the coaching world in 1981 to work for the Eastern Eight Basketball Conference. He worked in the advertising department and was the Eastern Eight official photographer for the 1981 season.

Bolla came to UNLV as an assistant coach for the Lady Rebels in 1981. He was promoted to Co-Head Coach in 1983.

JIM BOLLA'S CAREER RECORD

Bolla, a native of Pittsburgh, earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Health and Physical Education from the University of Pittsburgh in 1975. He enjoys photography, playing Trivial Pursuit and working around the house in his spare time.

Lady Rebel Assistant Coach JERRY BUSONE

Jerry Busone, the Lady Rebels new assistant coach, has vast experience with successful women's basketball programs. He helped coach two national championship teams, one National Women's Invitational Tournament (NWIT) championship squad and brought a struggling collegiate program to height of respectability in two short seasons.

But the most valuable factor that Busone possesses is his philosophy towards winning. Unlike most coaches today, Busone theorizes that winning is truly not everything.

"You can't measure the success of a program by whether or not you earn a national title or go to the Final Four," Busone said. "Winning can't be the sole purpose — it is a result of doing a number of things right. You have to go one step at a time and keep growing. If you work hard enough and do everything right the wins will come."

Busone is coming off one of the most successful head coaching stints ever. He literally turned the University of Hawaii Women's Basketball program, which had not won more than eight games a season in its entire history, into a veritable island power.

His first season, 1982-83, Hawaii amassed 22-12 record and received an invitation to the NWIT Tournament — the programs first ever post season tournament appearance.

But after two fruitful years in the island paradise, Busone decided to hang up his head coaching shoes and come to UNLV as an assistant. "I grew a lot in Hawaii," Busone explained. "I wanted to see what I was like as a head coach. Coming to UNLV was a good decision, it put my priorities in life back in order."

Prior to Busone's head coaching duties with the Rainbow Warriors, he served as an assistant at Old Dominion University for five years. He helped guide the Lady Monarchs to a NWIT Championship during his inaugural season in 1977-78.

Then in 1978-79, Old Dominion attained national prominence by capturing the NCAA National Championship trophy. Led by All-America Nancy Liberman, the Lady Monarchs repeated their championship performance in 1979-80 by winning their second national title.

During the two championship years, Busone helped coach what was called, "the greatest women's basketball team ever assembled on a court." In an exhibition game against Russia in 1979, this formidable squad came closer to beating the Soviets than any team did in 20 years. "That was the greatest game I was ever involved with," he said. "The Russians were not used to being behind in a game, and here we were on top until the final minutes. There were 11,000 screaming fans and American flags all over the place. . . it was a greater thrill than the two national championships."

Busone embarked in athletics while at LaSalle Institute in Green Island, New York. In high school he played basketball, football and ran track. He then went to Hudson Valley Junior College and played basketball and ran track. His last stop in his collegiate athletic career was at Santa Fe College where he played point guard on the school's basketball team.

Although Busone jests that he was "the kid nobody noticed on the floor," he was an expert at fundamentals. "I had a good set of legs and was quick, but I was short so I had to perfect the little things. Too many athletes are worried about their 20 foot jump shots rather than perfecting the fundamentals."

Busone earned a BBA in Management at Santa Fe and a masters in education at Old Dominion. He also published an article in Scholastic Coach magazine in December 1979.

Busone is also involved in Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Athletes in Action and various other affiliations. He is currently taking courses in theological courses.

Busone, a native of Green Island, N.Y., is married to the former Lori Jensen and has one daughter, Carly Leileni, age 20 months.

Lady Rebel Basketball Academic Advisor ROZ COHN

When the UNLV Lady Rebel Basketball team went in search of a new academic advisor for the 1984-85 season, they did not have to look far. Roz Cohn, a long time tutor and friend of the Lady Rebel program, was clearly the right person for the job.

"Being the academic advisor for the Lady Rebel Basketball team gives me the opportunity to try something different," Cohn explained. "I've always been interested in sports. And I'm very vociferous about women in sports receiving equal treatment — especially at the university level."

As the Lady Rebels Academic Advisor, Cohn is responsible for evaluating transcripts, making sure every player is progressing towards their respective degrees, making certain each player satisfies both University and degree requirements and overseeing each player's eligibility status. She works in conjunction with each player's faculty advisor to ensure academic progress is being made.

Cohn left 16 enjoyable years of teaching elementary school in order to accept her position at UNLV. Although Cohn relinquished her teaching duties, she finds many similarities between the two jobs.

"Academic advising is quite similar to teaching," she said. "In both jobs you're counseling, advising, diagnosing problems and prescribing treatment for them. Both jobs are also very big in organizational skills, short and long range planning and image skills, being a role model by setting high but achievable standards."

There are several cosmetic differences between teaching a cluster of second graders and advising a group of women athletes. The Lady Rebel Basketball players are bigger and more athletically gifted than the students Cohn is accustomed to. However, many of the problems Cohn is faced with daily have no age barriers.

"I always expected the best from my second graders, and I'm not about to accept any less from my college athletes," Cohn said.

But what persuaded Cohn the most to accept the position of academic advisor was her zealous support for athletics. "It upsets me when people don't come out and support athletics," she stated. "These people (coaches and players) work doubly hard. That is so admirable. Coming out and showing my support is my way of rewarding their hard efforts."

Cohn dispels the stereotypical notion of "the dumb jock." She believes that athletes are a special breed, that they should be admired, rather than belittled.

"Athletics is the marriage of mind and body," she said. "It lets you express yourself to your total potential. Athletes are special. When they perform it is a matter of transforming intellect into physical energy."

Cohn comes from a background that was anything but sports oriented. She was born and raised in the Bronx, New York. After graduating from high school Cohn went to work in the fashion industry for Parfait Originals as an Orders Coordinator. She then attended Hunter College in New York City full-time. In 1968 Cohn earned a degree in Education and Home Economics.

A week after college graduation Cohn was married and starting a new life in Las Vegas. She ventured to Las Vegas when her husband Gerry received a job with the school district. Within a few weeks, Cohn also received an offer from the Clark County School District. She accepted the position and taught elementary education at Howard Wasden Elementary School (formerly West Charleston Elementary School) for 16 years.

During Cohn's 17 years at West Charleston she taught first and second grades, team taught a group of 60 students, taught summer school and a federally funded kindergarten program. She helped formulate a reading and math management system program for the school district and was responsible for its implementation at her school.

Cohn has been a UNLV fan since the school's inception into the world of collegiate athletics. "I have been a fan of the Lady Rebels since they first started," Cohn said. "I even remember watching men's basketball games in the old gymnasium (which is now the museum)." When Sheila Strike-Bolla was appointed head coach of the Lady Rebel Basketball team Cohn started volunteering her services as a tutor.

Cohn is an avid jogger and runs five to seven miles a day. She also enjoys skiing and tennis. "I'm here to help guide the players," Cohn said of her responsibilities. "I'm not here to make the players dependent on me. I want them to become self-actualized, to take on responsibilities for themselves."

Lady Rebel Volunteer Coach PENNY WELSH

Penny Welsh begins her fourth year with the Lady Rebel Basketball program and her second year as a coach.

Last season, Welsh served as a graduate assistant while finishing her Bachelor of Arts degree in History. She is currently enrolled in UNLV's Masters program and is pursuing a MA degree in History. In addition to her position with the Lady Rebels, Welsh serves as a teaching assistant for the UNLV History Department teaching lower level courses.

Welsh will be working mainly with Assistant Coach Jerry Busone helping recruit top caliber athletes. "I will help write letters, make phone calls and just touch base with recruits and let them know what our program is all about and what we have to offer," Welsh said.

In the gym, Welsh will assist in her area of expertise — shooting. Although Welsh only played two seasons for the Lady Rebels, she was one of the most prolific shooters in UNLV history. She was the leading scorer both 1981-82 and 82-83 seasons and is currently third on the UNLV All-Time Scorers list, behind Debra Waddy and Kathie Calloway, with 994 points (18.4 average).

Welsh came to UNLV from the University of Pittsburgh where she played two seasons (79-80, 80-81). While at Pitt, she earned freshman MVP honors and was named to the Women's Invitational Tournament All-America team her sophomore year.

As a prepster at St. Elizabeth High School in Wilmington, Delaware, Welsh's athletic talents blossomed. She earned All-America, All-Catholic, All-State honors and guided her squad to a state championship her senior year. Welsh's ambition is to coach her own collegiate team someday. "I want to stay involved with basketball, she said. Welsh was born 5-14-61 and is a native of Wilmington, Delaware. She comes from a very athletically gifted and supportive family. Her five sisters and two brothers are all involved in sports.

Prior to her appointment at UNLV, she was the head trainer for San Marcos 5A High School in San Marcos, Texas from 1981-83. While at San Marcos, Boyer was the full-time trainer for the entire athletic department.

Boyer came to San Marcos High after earning her masters in Physical Education and Counseling from Southwest Texas. She was responsible for six women's programs at Southwest Texas. Boyer also was the assistant trainer for the 1981 Division II Champion Southwest Texas Football team.

Boyer had the distinction of becoming the first female to receive an athletic training scholarship to the University of Pittsburgh in 1977. While at Pitt she was the trainer for the volleyball, swimming, gymnastics, baseball and football teams. She graduated from Pitt with honors in 1979.

In 1976-77, Boyer was a Physical Therapy Assistant for Methodist Hospital in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Boyer earned an Associate Degree in Biological Science from Allegheny Community College, where she played basketball and softball, in 1975. She attended Caneyin High School in Pittsburgh — the same high school Co-Head Coach Jim Bolla attended — and was a member of the school's women's basketball squad.

Boyer is involved with many athletic training organizations including: the National Athletic Trainers Association (NATA), the Nevada Athletic Training Association, the American Red Cross and the American Heart Association. When Boyer is lucky enough to get some free time she enjoys camping, fishing and participating in all types of sports. She has two brothers and one sister and is the daughter of Ray and Jo Ann Boyer. Boyer, 29, is single and a native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

All-America Candidate MISTY THOMAS

Guard Windsor, Ontario, Canada
5-11 Junior

The amount of effort exerted is directly proportional to the results produced.

Lady Rebel All-America candidate Misty Thomas is a firm believer in this theory. Whether she is leading a fast break or studying for a final exam, she applies this theory to every endeavor.

"Misty has a philosophy that when she comes to play, whether it be practice or a game, she is going to play her hardest," Co-Head Coach Jim Bolla said.

While many athletes boast that 100 percent effort is exerted in every situation, few athletes ever reach that plateau. Thomas is an exception. "Misty's idea of playing basketball is playing at 100 percent," Bolla said. "At this level of athletics, playing at 100 percent in every situation is not always true."

During the past two seasons with the Lady Rebels, Thomas has distinguished herself as one of the West's finest point guards. As a freshman, she averaged 12.1 points per game and was named to the Women's Basketball Yearbook All-America Freshman Team (second team). Last year, Thomas was the Lady Rebels' second leading scorer with 15.5 points per game and broke the season assist record (180). She was also named CoSIDA Academic All-America sporting an excellent 3.94 GPA, 1984 All-PCAA and was named to the 7-UP Desert Classic, the Budweiser Round Robin and the Northern Lights All-Tournament teams.

But to describe Thomas in a nutshell only one word is needed, "talent."

"Her best quality is that she is a talented athlete," Bolla said. "She shoots well, she handles the ball well for her size, she can play all the positions. . . I think the best way to describe her is that she just does a number of things well."

A unique quality that Thomas possesses is that she is a self motivator. She has an inner desire to excel that surpasses all other quests.

"She always wants to be the best and get the best out of her fellow teammates," Bolla explained. "She is definitely the hardest worker on our team. In her studies it is the same way — she wants to be the best she can be. Sometimes she gets upset with me when I won't let her practice."

Not only is Thomas one of the best in the west, but she has also established herself as one of Canada's premier women's basketball players. This past summer she was a member of the Canadian Olympic team that competed in the 1984 Los Angeles Games. She was used extensively as the sixth player coming off the bench.

According to Bolla, Thomas' international playing experience will add another dimension to her already lengthy list of credentials. "International competition is almost a completely different game," he said. "It is a lot more physical and it motivates you to play your best on all occasions. She carries this style of play over to our games."

But the most obvious unique aspect about Thomas is her size. A 5-11 frame is not that unusual for a woman basketball player, but it is quite unusual for a point guard. Most point guards "tower" only as high as 5-4 or 5-5 at the most.

Thomas, with her expert ball handling abilities and knowledge of the game, was the Lady Rebels' most natural choice for a point guard, despite her larger-than-average size.

"Misty is a leader basically because she is a point guard," Bolla said. "But I think that even if she was a forward she would be looked upon as a leader on the floor."

Thomas, however, is currently faced with a dilemma. In spite of her outstanding athletic abilities, her leadership qualities and her dominance on the floor, she may have a difficult time in gaining All-America status. "In order for her to earn All-America honors all she will have to do is continue to play like she has for the past two years," Bolla said. "She has played like an All-America, but hasn't received the necessary exposure."

The type of exposure needed for All-America honors is not found in newspapers or on television, it is sought by winning games. "It is almost impossible today to become an All-America on only an average team," Bolla said. "You have to be on a winning program that is known around the country."

This season Thomas will be utilized more as a scorer, according to Bolla. "She's very unselfish," he said. "Many times she'll pass the ball away when it's her shot. . . it's just her nature. This year however, she will use more of her scoring potential."

As a prepster at Vincent Massey Secondary School, Thomas was a four time All-City selection and was chosen Provincial All-Star, which is equivalent to All-America honors in the United States. She was also a recipient of the Arcanum Award, which is given to the Windsor student who best combines athletic skill and academic achievement.

Thomas is not the first person in her family to experience Olympic competition. Her father Paul, who is the basketball coach for the University of Windsor, was the youngest person to coach the Canadian Olympic team in 1952.

Thomas is majoring in Physical Education and Sports Medicine and has aspirations to attend medical school.

Work = Results is a theory that Thomas will continue to live her life by. This season however, this equation will hopefully be recalculated to read: "The amount of work exerted is directly proportional to the amount of All-America status gained."

The Word Is Out On Misty Thomas

Pat Summitt, Head Coach of the University of Tennessee & the 1984 Gold Medalist USA Women's Basketball Team

"I think that Misty is an intense player. Her spirit and intensity complements her play on the court. From what I saw at the Olympic Games, she has very good leadership capabilities."

Sheila Strike-Bolla Co-Head Coach of the UNLV Lady Rebels

"Misty epitomizes for me a truly dedicated athlete who combines her talents with a sense of purpose and leadership. She has the very qualities of character that defines champions. Perhaps what separates Misty from other good women basketball players is that not only is she talented and hard working, but she is bright and has the capacity to truly control a game. I think that through her international playing experience she can hold her own with anyone in the world. She is definitely an All-America in my eyes."

Sonja Hogg, Co-Head Coach of Louisiana Tech Lady Techsters

"Misty has quickness and a lot of ability. She pushes the ball down the floor very good and is a great penetrator. I think she controls her team and really sets the tempo. As a point guard she's a natural leader and her team has been very successful with her there."

Jody Conradt, Head Coach of the University of Texas Longhorns

"She is just an excellent player. Misty is versatile and very unique at the point guard position because of her size; most point guards are not as big as her. She calls excellent plays and I think she's a 40 minute player. Not only is she very intense for 40 minutes, but she works hard the entire game. Misty, in my opinion, is among the top point guards in the nation."

Dean Andrea, Head Coach of the University of California Irvine Anteaters

"Misty is a very intelligent player and very unselfish. She has good strength and great fundamentals. She is also a good team leader and handles the ball well. Definitely she has All-America capabilities."

UNLV Captures First Ever PCAA Conference Title

The Lady Rebel Basketball team became the first ever PCAA conference champions last season by defeating University of California Irvine, 78-58, in the championship game. The Lady Rebels compiled a perfect 4-0 conference record, defeating UC-Irvine and UC-Santa Barbara each twice in regular season play.

The PCAA Women's Basketball conference has expanded this year with the additions of the University of Hawaii and the University of Pacific. This year every team will play a home and home series against each conference opponent. The PCAA Women's Basketball Tournament, scheduled for March 9&10 at UC Irvine, will pit the top four conference finishers.

"The PCAA conference gives us more flexibility that we didn't have as an independent," Co-Head Coach Jim Bolla said, "I think the additions of Hawaii and Pacific will be one step further in establishing more credibility for the conference. We're very pleased with how the league is progressing to develop quality basketball."

The eventual goal for the PCAA Women's Basketball conference is to acquire enough members to receive an automatic NCAA Playoff bid. Despite its present lack of required conference teams, the PCAA office aids in obtaining bids for the conference champions and those teams worthy of post-season tournament play. Last season the Lady Rebels, who amassed a 24-7 record, received a first ever NCAA Playoff invitation.

Overall, being associated with a conference has many advantages. The idea of a winning conference gives a team momentum when gearing up for post-season play. Rivalries are also easier to develop with the advent of a conference. In the past, the Lady Rebels were a major independent, where after the season's end, the program was totally at the mercy of the NCAA selection committee.

Co-Head Coach Sheila Strike-Bolla also agrees that membership in the newly formed PCAA is a definite step in the right direction.

"It presents a great opportunity for our women's basketball program to be associated with a fine conference as the PCAA."

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION

UNLV President Dr. Robert C. Maxson

Dr. Robert C. Maxson was named the fifth president of the University of Nevada, Las Vegas this past summer. He was previously the senior vice president for academic affairs of the University of Houston System (1981-84).

His administrative experience began in 1957-68, when he served as teacher and administrator for Palm Beach County School District. From 1968-70 he served as a research assistant at Mississippi State University while completing his doctorate.

Maxson's other credentials include: Faculty Member, School of Education, Auburn University at Montgomery (1970-73); Dean, School of Education, Auburn University at Montgomery (1973-77); Dean, College of Learning and Human Development, Appalachian State University (1977-78); Chancellor, University of Houston Victoria Campus (1978-79, 1980-81); Interim President, University of Houston System (1979-80).

Maxson received his bachelor's degree in education and psychology from the University of Arkansas at Monticello in 1958 and his Masters degree in Educational Administration from Florida Atlantic University in 1967, and his Doctorate in Educational Leadership from Mississippi State University in 1970. Maxson and his wife, Sylvia, have two children, Todd (19) and Kim (15).

UNLV Athletic Director DR. BRAD ROTHERMEL

For the 1983-84 academic year, the University of Nevada, Las Vegas has had each of its fourteen intercollegiate sports, with only two exceptions, represented in post-season, national competition. In addition, exactly half of those sports were ranked nationally in the top 20 at one time or another. Much of the credit for this outstanding intercollegiate record goes to UNLV's Director of Intercollegiate Athletics, Dr. Brad Rothermel.

Rothermel, now entering his fifth year as UNLV's Athletic Director, has built UNLV athletics to the point where the university is now very competitive at both the conference and national levels.

Rothermel's philosophy while at UNLV has been that the function of the intercollegiate athletic program is to provide for student-athletes an environment in which those student-athletes are able to pursue excellence in selected extracurricular educationally related athletic activities. Furthermore, his objective for the programs is to win within the structure of the rules and the budgetary framework provided. The achievement of this goal is demonstrated by successfully competing against national championship caliber competition in all activities sponsored by the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Prior to his appointment at UNLV in 1981, he was Associate Director and Business Manager for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics at West Virginia University. From 1974 to 1976 he was employed as Assistant Director and Business Manager for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics at Kansas State University.

Rothermel received his Ph.D. in 1965 and a M.S. degree in 1961 from the College of Applied Human Life Sciences at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana. He received his B.S. from Northern Illinois University in 1960.

Rothermel and his wife, Suzanne, a kindergarten teacher in the Clark County District, have two daughters; Beth, 15, and Christine, 11.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA, LAS VEGAS

The University of Nevada, Las Vegas, one of the fastest growing institutions of higher education in the southwest, is a component of the University of Nevada system, which is governed by the nine-member Nevada Board of Regents.

UNLV recently celebrated its 25th anniversary. The extensive academic programs provided on UNLV's large, beautiful campus prove the explosive growth of higher education since its birth in southern Nevada.

After several years of providing extension courses in southern Nevada staffed by faculty from the University of Nevada in Reno, the state legislature officially established the Southern Regional Division of the university in 1957. That same year the first building on campus—Maude Frazier Hall—was opened.

By the mid-1960s, the university had become a four-year degree-granting institution known as Nevada Southern University. Full autonomy, with status equal to UNR, came in 1968. The following year the regents gave the campus its new name: University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV).

The 335-acre campus is located two miles from the Las Vegas Strip in the heart of a busy commercial and residential area. On-campus facilities serve over 11,000 graduate and undergraduate students as well as provide a center for cultural and extended educational experiences for the community.

Points of interest on the campus include the following:

Museum of Natural History—With specialized exhibits to illustrate the story of man in this region, the museum is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. 739-3399.

Atrium and Aviary—This lush garden and bird sanctuary is located in the lobby of Juanita Greer White Hall. The building is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. 739-3399.

Art Gallery—Exhibits by students, faculty and nationally renowned artists are changed every 2-3 weeks in the gallery, which is located in the northwest corner of the Alta Ham Fine Arts Building (HFA-153). Hours are noon to 4 p.m., Mon.-Sat.

McDermott Physical Education Center—This large, well equipped facility is open to the public. Hours vary. Phone number: 739-3150/3157.

Center for the Performing Arts—At the northern end of the campus mall area are two auditoriums: Artemus W. Ham Concert Hall, which is the scene of regularly scheduled concerts (739-3801); and Judy Bayley Theatre, where plays are staged throughout the year (739-3801). On the plaza between them is The Flashlight, a 38-foot-tall, 74,000-pound steel sculpture by internationally known artist Claus Oldenburg.

During the past three years, UNLV has embarked on an ambitious $60 million construction program which has resulted in four new buildings on campus — three of them the direct result of local philanthropy.

Ground was broken in 1981 for the Thomas and Mack Center, an 18,500-seat sports pavilion, and it opened in November 1983 to become the new home of the Runnin' Rebel basketball team. The university expects to book a wide variety of events into this spacious facility, named for longtime university donors E. Parry Thomas and Jerome Mack.

Construction also was completed in 1983 on an $11.7 million building to house both the College of Business and Economics and the College of Hotel Administration — Frank and Estella Beam Hall (named for the parents of donor Thomas T. Beam). In addition to many specialized facilities to meet the needs of both colleges, the structure features a semi-covered outdoor patio.

A generous gift from local attorney Artemus W. Ham, Jr., provided the seed money for the recently opened Alta Ham Fine Arts Building. Named for Ham's late mother, the $5 million facility houses the theatre arts, music, art and dance programs. It also contains an innovative Black Box Theatre for smaller-scale theatre productions as well as the campus' Fine Arts Gallery.

Finally a $7 million, four-story addition to the James R. Dickinson Library opened in Fall 1981, providing special facilities and more room for the expanded library holdings required by a growing student population.

A distinguished faculty of more than 400 men and women are actively involved in teaching, research and community service. Faculty members, 77% with doctorates, have come to UNLV from many of the great learning centers of the country — M.I.T., Yale, Harvard, Berkeley, Stanford.

Bachelors degrees are awarded in 46 major subjects, and there are 26 programs which lead to master's degrees. Specialist degrees and doctorates are offered in the field of education. All programs have been fully accredited by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges.

UNLV operates on the semester system with a Mini Term offered between the fall and spring semesters. During the summer there are two five-week summer sessions. This arrangement of course offerings provides students with a wide range of scheduling possibilities.

The Las Vegas community is served directly by an ambitious continuing education program at UNLV. Approximately 16,000 local residents take part annually in more than 500 credit and non-credit courses. These "Classes for People" are designed with a wide range of potential students in mind: nurses, teachers and other professionals who need courses to stay current in their fields; housewives who want to develop new skills; business people; children; and anyone interested in the Southern Nevada environment.

LAS VEGAS, THE CITY

The city of Las Vegas, Nevada is a thriving metropolis of nearly half-a-million permanent residents nestled in a desert valley near the southernmost tip of the state.

Located in the scenic southwestern United States, Las Vegas is within a 30-mile radius of Lake Mead; the massive Hoover Dam and Colorado River recreational area; the snow skiing trails of 12,000 foot Mt. Charleston; and a panorama of red-rock mountains, eroded sandstone landscapes and replicas of old western towns. Also, within easy reach is the Southern California coastal areas, Arizona's Grand Canyon, California's Death Valley and Southern Utah's Zion National Park.

First settled in 1855 as a missionary outpost of the Mormon Church, the city has grown into one of the premier entertainment spots in the world. Of course, everyone is familiar with the famed Las Vegas "Strip," where renowned entertainers come to perform and the glamour and glitter is unsurpassed anywhere. Yet, the "Strip" is by no means the only means of entertainment. In many important ways, Las Vegas is like any other large city that is on the go. There is a rich cultural scene including art galleries, theatres, ballet and numerous musical organizations.

In addition, there are new museums, recreational parks, libraries, churches and hospitals making Las Vegas a city able to satisfy every taste.

LIFE AFTER LADY REBEL BASKETBALL

"The ultimate value of the intercollegiate athletic experience for women is that it provides a vehicle by which young women may obtain an education. The current measure of a program may be a reflection of its most recent won-loss record, but over time, it is a reflection of the calibre of women who at one time comprised the program. In ten or twenty years, what I will derive the most satisfaction from is not so much reminiscing about past victories, but admiring the continuing accomplishments of former Lady Rebels. When scores are long forgotten, the people remain; what those people have been inspired to do as a result of passing through our program will, for me, be a true measure of our success."

Co-Head Coach Sheila Strike-Bolla

Here is a brief synopsis of some of the recent captains of the Lady Rebel Basketball program and what they are doing now:

SONIA LYKES (Captain 1982-83)

1983, Criminal Justice — After graduating with a degree in Criminal Justice, Lykes decided to further her education in the field of law by entering Court Stenography School in Los Angeles, CA. Lykes, a native of Inglewood, CA, is sixth on the All Time Scorers' list with 950 total points and still holds the assist game record with 14 (achieved against Cameron University in 1982). Her future goal is to own her own court stenography company someday.

KATHY RICKS (Captain 1980-81)

1981, Secondary Education — Kathy Ricks is using her basketball knowledge and expertise, nurtured at UNLV, as the Head Assistant Coach for the two-time defending National Champions University of Southern California. Ricks is the Lady Trojans' recruiting coordinator and is responsible for the recruitment of some of the finest women's basketball players in the country. Prior to her appointment at USC, she was the assistant coach for the University of California-Irvine Anteaters. Upon graduating from UNLV, Ricks spent the 1982-83 season as a graduate assistant for the Lady Rebels. She has aspirations to someday be a head coach for a Division I school.

KATHIE CALLOWAY (Captain 1981-82)

1982, Chemistry — One of the most highly regarded players ever to come out of UNLV, Calloway is approaching her career with as much fervor as she approached the game of basketball. Calloway is entering her third year at Howard Medical School in Washington, D.C. She is specializing her medical studies in the field of Anesthesiology and hopes to become an Anesthesiologist upon graduation. As a player with the Lady Rebels, Calloway has numerous records which still stand today, including free throws (287), rebounds (917), and number of games played (110). She also is the all time top scorer with 1319 total points (11.9 per game average). Calloway is a native of Michigan City, Indiana.

PENNY Welsh (Captain 1982-83)

History, 1983 — Welsh is entering her second year as a member of the Lady Rebel staff. As a 1983 graduate of UNLV, Welsh was appointed the position of graduate assistant last year. This year, she will be fulfilling the duties of a volunteer assistant while pursuing a two-year masters degree in history. As a player, Welsh was the third leading all time scorer at UNLV with 994 total points (18.4 average). Welsh has aspirations to earn a masters degree and coach a collegiate team someday.

PAULA CLEAR (Co-Captain 1983-84)

Secondary Education, 1984 — It did not take long for Paula Clear to start her career after graduating from UNLV in the spring of 1984. She will be a substitute teacher and girls basketball coach for her alma mater Northview High School in Covina, CA. She also has aspirations to earn a masters degree and coach on the collegiate level.
